Ford pledges to help veterans, names VA chief

By FRANCIS LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — President Ford today named his "personal friend and former congressional colleague" Richard I. Roudebush of Indiana to be the new administrator of Veterans Affairs.

Ford promised to see that veterans are "not just a digit in a computer system that sometimes goofs."

He warned, however, that with America "fighting for its economic life," he would not hesitate to veto any bill, including the pending veterans education bill to control "inflationary excesses."

"I am open to conciliation and compromise on the total amount authorized so that we can protect veteran trainees against the rising cost of living," the President said.

Ford, making the first trip in his new presidency, came to Chicago to address the 75th annual convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at the International Ballroom of the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

He spoke to them as a fellow veteran — having served in the Navy in World War II — pledging to work for more jobs for veterans, better hospital facilities and a humanized and better-run VA administration.

Ford reiterated his commitment to a strong national defense, warning that he would "offer no temptations" to potential adversaries who watch U.S. readiness.

He pledged that "just as America will maintain its nuclear deterrent strength," we will never fall behind in negotiations to control and hopefuly reduce this threat to mankind."

Noting that "peace and security require preparedness and dedication," Ford added, "Good will must never be misconstrued as a lack of will."

It had been expected that Ford might announce here that he would sign a veterans bill that would provide a 23 per cent increase in monthly payments for veterans attending school under the GI bill. The measure has been approved by Senate-House conferees and was expected to pass both houses this week.

Ford's comments here, indicated, however, that he is still looking for some anti-inflationary cuts in veterans' measures and perhaps in the huge defense budget as well.

"If we can send men thousands of miles from home to fight in rice paddies, certainly we can send them back to school and to better jobs at home," the President said.

"I am considering the veterans education bill in this light," he added. "But your government is constrained by another consideration. We are all soldiers in a war against brutal inflation."

He said he was working hard on "a nonpartisan battle plan against excessive government spending." And, "I will not hesitate to use the veto to control inflationary excesses."

Ford said his new administration was pledged to humanize the VA and improve its management

"I want no arrogance or indifference to any individual, veteran or not," he said "The government's machinery exists to serve people and not to frustrate or humiliate them."

There was a small welcoming crowd at O'Hare International Airport for the President's arrival. Among several hundred persons on hand were some sign carriers with placards reading, "Welcome President Ford" and "Cook County Republicans welcome President Ford"

Ford said his newly named VA administrator, a former VFW commander in chief, now deputy VA administrator, is "a man who gets things done."

He will succeed Donald Johnson.

U.S. ambassador killed in Greek Cypriot protest

By The Associated Press

The American ambassador to Cyprus, Rodger P. Davies, was shot to death today when a mob of Greek Cypriots attacked the U.S. Embassy in Nicosia to protest American policy in the Cyprus crisis.

Cypriot President Glafcos Clerides announced Davies' death over Cyprus Radio after visiting the embassy. "I denounce this terrible crime against Cyprus in the strongest terms and express my deepest sorrow and sympathy," he said.

Witnesses said at least some of the shots were fired by men known to be members of EOKA-B, the pro-Greek underground guerrilla group that helped overthrow President Makarios last month.

A Cypriot woman employe at the embassy was killed and two others working at the embassy were wounded in the attack.

Davies, 53, a veteran diplomat, had been deputy assistant secretary for Near East and Southeast Asian affairs before being assigned to Cyprus on July 10, five days before Makarios was overthrown.

Witnesses said the demonstrators fired at the embassy after U.S. Marines threw tear gas to try to disperse the mob, which moments earlier set Davies' black limousine on fire.

The limousine exploded like a bomb when flames reached the gas tank, and black billows of smoke were visible halfway across the capital.

The Turks made fresh advances south of Nicosia over the weekend, cutting one of the two major roads between the capital and the south coast and advancing toward the second highway. But a U.N. spokesman said there were no reports of fighting during the night.

President Ford said he was "shocked and deeply saddened" by Davies' death. "This tragic incident empahsizes the urgent need for the end to the violence on Cyprus and an immediate return to negotiations for a peaceful settlement" Ford said in a statement.

In Athens, Greek Premier Constantine Caramanlis said the killing was "an abominable crime," and said the Greek government would respond to such acts "with unreserved severity."

In Athens' Constitution Square some 3,000-4,000 demonstrators rioted and chanted "Americans out" and "Greece save Cyprus." Seven persons were injured, police said. Extra police were assigned to protect the U.S. Embassy in Athens.

Greek Cypriots on Cyprus have become increasingly frustrated over Turkish military advances on the island since the Turks invaded it July 20. Last week a blitz-like Turkish assault left the Turks in solid control of the northern third of the island.

Just prior to learning of the mob attack on the U.S. Embassy, President Clerides held a news conference during which he declared Cyprus would not negotiate under force "in Cyprus, outside Cyprus, in this world or the next."

He avoided a direct answer when asked if he will insist on a full Turkish withdrawal before peace talks. He said talks must be held "in the spirit of negotiation and not in the spirit of an ultimatum."

In Washington, Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger said Turkey "has gone beyond what any of its friends or sympathizers are prepared to accept." Speaking on the CBS-TV program "Face the Nation," he said the United States would reexamine its position in the Cyprus crisis in view of the "unexpected" Turkish military advances.

Thousands of Americans of Greek descent demonstrated peacefully on Sunday, marching around the White House for four hours to protest U. S. policies on Cyprus. President Ford, who was playing golf at the time, did not see the protest.

Moving south from the Lefka-Nicosia-Famagusta line the Turks established across northern Cyprus last week, Turkish troops seized Pyroi, a Greek Cypriot village 10 miles south of Nicosia on the highway from the capital to Larnaca, on the southeast coast.

From Pyroi, the Turkish tanks and infantry moved west toward the highway to Limassol, on the south coast. An earlier report that the Limassol road was cut proved incorrect, but during the night more Turkish tanks and armored personnel carriers crossed the Larnaca road and headed southwest.

The Turkish forces appeared to be heading both for the large Turkish town of Louroujina, four miles away, and the large Greek Cypriot town of Dahali, four miles northwest of Louroujina and only a mile from the Nicosia-Limassol highway. If the Turks cut that highway, the capital's only access to the rest of the island would the a single-lane dirt road leading south over the Troodos mountains.

Reports that the Turks were encircling Nicosia touched off a second panicky flight from the city on Sunday by

Rodger P. Davies, the U.S. ambassador to Cyprus who was killed today when a Greek Cypriot mob stormed the U.S. Embassy in Nicosia, had officially taken his post on the Mediterranean island only five days before the Cyprus crisis began.

Rodger Davies

Davies, 53, presented his credentials on July 10. On July 15, the Greek-led Cypriot national guard deposed Archbishop Makarios and seized control of the Mediterranean island, triggering an invasion by Turkish forces five days later.

Davies was a 26-year veteran of the foreign service. A specialist in Middle Eastern affairs, he had last served as deputy assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern and South Asian affairs.

Davies joined the foreign service in 1946, and attended the service institute for Arabic training. His assignments included posts in Syria, Lebanon, Jordan, Libya and Iraq.

Born in Berkeley, Calif., Davies attended the University of California at Berkeley.

Davies' wife had died a year ago, and he is survived by two children. Both were evacuated to Beirut, Lebanon, earlier in the Cyprus crisis.

Week long coal shutdown begins

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Coal miners began a week long work stoppage today at mines producing more than three-quarters of the nation's coal, an action that will deplete already low stockpiles at steel mills and power plants.

Union leaders are calling it a memorial period, a device in the current United Mine Workers contract intended to allow the miners mourning periods — without pay — for those killed in mine accidents

But this memorial period, which began at midnight Sunday, comes at a time when coal-using industries would like to be building their stockpiles in preparation for a possible strike when the UMW contract expires on Nov. 12.

U.S. Steel, the nation's largest producer of steel and a heavy coal consumer, reported last week that its stockpiles were down to 14 days' supply. Jones & Laughlin, sixth ranked, said its stockpiles were "already too low for the operation levels required by the strong steel market."

The National Coal Association's latest figures show that as of June 1, before the UMW's annual mass two-week vacation period, electric utilities had a 92-day supply The Tennessee Valley Authority, which gets two-thirds of its coal from UMW mines, reported last week that some of its generating stations were down to as little as 12 days of coal.

The stoppage will idle some 120,000 UMW members and close an estimated 1,200 underground and surface mines in about a dozen states. It will cost the nation about nine million tons of coal, according to estimates by the Bituminous Coal Operators' Association, the industry group that negotiates with the UMW, and will cost miners $25 million in lost wages

A side issue — but easily the most volatile one — is a firm UMW drive to establish a union beachhead in eastern Kentucky with a strike against the Brookside Mining Co., a subsidiary of the Duke Power Co.

Negotiations for a contract there are deadlocked and the year-long strike has been marked by sporadic incidents of violence.

Because it would be considered an illegal secondary boycott, the union cannot openly describe the shutdown as putting pressure on the coal industry to support its drive at Brookside.

Economic agency approval near

WASHINGTON (AP) — One week after President Ford requested legislation creating an inflation-monitoring task force, Congress is nearing passage of the bill.

Both the House and Senate have set floor action on the bill for today and it is expected that congressional action will be completed during the day.

Democrats and many Republicans are skeptical whether the proposed Cost of Living Task Force, which would not have any enforcement power, could lower the nation's inflation rate.

However, in the spirit of conciliation with the new President, they say they are willing to give him the legislation he asked for in a speech to Congress last Monday.

Also today, the House resumes debate on a $20 billion, six-year mass transit bill which Ford says he wants cut sharply.

Rep. John H. Rousselot, a conservative California Republican who believes budget cuts would do more than any task force could to curtail inflation, recalled that Congress had balked at giving former President Richard M. Nixon similar authority last spring.

He then added

"Why this change now? It is because we have a new President and we are anxious to support him ... But this does not make an idea any better than it was when it was rejected four months ago."

The task force has about 25 staffers and the policy would be directed by a coalition of the President's economic advisers. These would include the secretaries of treasury, agriculture, commerce and labor.

The House is expected to wrap up action on the mass transit bill, which would provide operating subsidies for the first time as well as grants for buying equipment.

Ford supports GOP congressional efforts to trim the bill to $11 billion but Democrats hope to hold the line at $15 8 billion.

During the weekend, the American Automobile Association said the bill contains a little-noticed provision which would expand the weight limits of trucks allowed on interstate highways to 90,000 pounds, something the AAA said the trucking industry has sought to get in a six-year lobbying drive.

They said it would endanger motorists, put more stress on "the nation's already critically deficient bridges and cost the states between $50 million and $100 million annually to repair truck-caused damage "

On Tuesday, the Senate will try for the third time to cut off debate on legislation creating a consumer protection agency. The two previous attempts to cut off a filibuster lost by 10 and 7 votes and the prospects for success this week are not considered good.

Newsgirl, mistaken for hitman, slain near Detroit

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich (AP) — Twelve-year-old Edith Perchman was delivering the Detroit Free Press on her regular route when she approached the Rudolph Acosta residence in Highland Park.

It was about 5 a.m Sunday and still dark. Her father, Marion, who always drove her, was waiting in his car with Edith's 11-year-old sister and one of her friends.

Edith was about to flip the newspaper onto Acosta's front porch when a shotgun blast from a window in the house sprayed her in the face.

She fell in the yard, but pulled herself up and was stumbling toward her father's car when a man appeared on the porch with a pistol and began firing.

Police say Edith was hit at least 15 times in the two shootings. But it was not immediately known how many bullet wounds she suffered after being hit by the shotgun pellets.

She died after being admitted to a local hospital

The girl's father, who drives a delivery truck for the Free Press, told police he also was fired at as he pulled his daughter into the car from a grassy strip between the sidewalk and the curb.

Perchman was not hit, but as he sped off the car door flew open and Edith fell to the pavement. Perchman lost control and his car slammed into a nearby house.

Perchman was hospitalized in serious condition with internal injuries. Edith's sister and friend were not hurt.

Acosta, 24, who told police he mistook the girl for a "hit man," was arraigned on charges of manslaughter and freed on $2,500 bond. An examination was set for Sept. 10. Police said he surrendered without a struggle when officers arrived at his house.

Police said Acosta was not charged with murder because he did not intend to kill the girl. Detective Donald Roberts said state police had told Acosta that someone was out to kill him in connection with the drug-related death of another individual, and that Acosta apparently thought the girl was the assailant.

Police said Perchman's car was the same color as one believed driven by the real "hit man."

Some 200 angry neighbors gathered at city hall in this Detroit enclave and demanded that Acosta be jailed and charged with murder

Mysterious hand holds school papers

BY CAPPY DICK

If you use a spring clip to hold your school papers together, you can have fun by attached a small hand to the clip so the hand appeared to be holding the papers as in figure 3.

Draw the outline of the back of the open hand as in Figure 1. Draw it on a white business card or calling card.

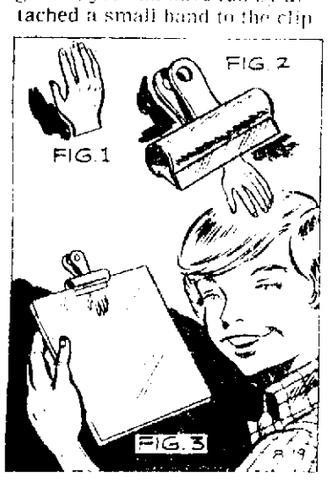

With fast-drying mending glue, attach the hand to the top leaf of the clip as in Figure 2.

When the glue has dried, the clip is ready for use. Simply open the clip by pressing on the ends of the leaves in the usual way, slip it over a sheaf of your school papers and then release it.

The hand can be attached to the spring clip which is part of a clipboard, as well as to a clip that is not attached to a clipboard.

You may color the hand realistically with your water colors or poster paints.

Operation Lady Slipper

81 women wore army boots

CAMP MC COY, Wis (AP) — Operation Lady Slipper is an unlikely code name for the war games operated by the 205th Infantry Brigade of the Army Reserved, headquartered at Fort Snelling, Minn

But the 4,000-member unit had a new look this summer 81 women were among the troops wearing gas masks, firing canons, loading on helicopters, marching in the dust and carrying the soldier s standard equipment an M16 rifle

The only place the women separated from the men was in their quarters

Women were integrated into all the companies of the brigade, except line companies They filled clerk jobs drove personnel carriers and other vehicles

In the war games, the women were captured by aggressor forces and wound up in a POW camp

Somehow during the long days which ended for the women at midnight when they returned to quarters, there was time to fix hair, and a few brought along some slippers to match the code name of the week s training

De Pere conference

Experts come to grips with hyperactivity

BY SANDRA SHACKELFORD
Post Crescent staff writer

DE PERE — In a lengthy session laced with pain and humor Mary Reistroffer and Helen McVey came to grips with the plight of the hyperactive child and his or her effect on family relationships

Speaking Friday at the second annual conference of the Wisconsin Association for Children with Learning Disabilities at St Norbert College the two women presented their views on the subject and received feedback from an audience of professionals many themselves parents of children who hear their own drummer

Reistroffer an associate professor at the Center for Social Service UW Extension Milwaukee stated that little is known about the causes of hyperactivity in children Some theories point to a genetic cause Others indicate that hyperactivity is a result of a brain injury during the birth process

According to Reistroffer the psychiatric field favors the birth injury theory, "the youngster has the equipment but it doesn't work

The speaker outlined three critical areas in the lives of hyperactive children at age two when they have to learn when they begin school and when they enter adolescence

One out of every 17 children in this country could wear the label of hyperactive child she noted, adding that the syndrome usually occurs in male births

Some beginning research indicates that it doesn't strike the same family twice She cautioned about adhering the label until there has been a complete work up

Though research is at work uncovering the secrets locked behind the mystery of hyperactivity, Reistroffer explained that there is no mystery concerning the impact on family relationships

There is no child who can create greater conflict in a marriage than this child " Many marriages just don't survive Problems with extended family members add to the strain

Helen McVey took her turn at the podium

An elementary teacher in the Milwaukee Public School System, she has a vested interest in the subject Her son is hyperactive Diagnosed at 18 months, Patrick is now 14

What advice would she give other parents confronted with the problem? she queried

Said McVey, "I would write out a creed for myself," an aid in dealing with husbands, relatives, neighbors and teachers Her creed would read "When John is under my care I will provide the best care possible In situations requiring quick action, she affirmed that she would never justify her actions

"When I tried to justify my actions, guilt came into my life," was her candid response "You have felt the rejection, the rebellion when you tried to cuddle or feed your child " Guilt manifests itself in the response, ' What have I done that this child should be different?"

Compounding the problem of guilt are the sleepless nights that come from parenting a hyperactive child, a child who needs constant supervision Said McVey, "You learn to sleep when this child sleeps "

How did she cope with relatives? "I was fortunate," she quipped "I lived 2,000 miles away from my relatives "

When asked about the problems resulting from over-protecting the hyperactive child, McVey explained, "You have to protect your child It's the mother who has to cart this child off to the emergency room

In her case trips to the hospital with her son, Patrick, number 28

Ideally, husband and wife share the task of raising their hyperactive child This is not always the case McVey offered I think it s harder for a father to put up with a hyperactive child than the mother She lives with it through the day

According to the speaker the ego crisis comes to the father when he wants to teach his child to play ball or ride a bicycle

"If this child is typical he's not going to throw the ball back He's going to throw it He plays by his own rules

The session concluded with McVey urging parents to explain their child's hyperactivity to teachers and to take action to promote better understanding of this particular learning disability

Opening lead — ♡ Q

You win the first trick with the ace of hearts and notice that you will prob ably need the spade finesse to take nine tricks First, however you plan to run six club tricks to put the opponents un der pressure

You therefore lead a club to dummy s queen, and East discards the seven of spades "No clubs?" you ask him Whereupon both opponents smirk ingly

WHICH DID YOU LEAD?

The vital question now is Which club did you lead? If you led the four of clubs at the second trick you will look down at the table and complain about bad breaks

But suppose you were clever enough to have led the eight of clubs to dummy s queen You finesse with the queen of spades holding your breath and find that it wins the trick So far so good

Next you lead the ten of clubs West must cover with the jack, and you win with dummy s king Back with the ace of spades and now you lead the four of clubs West plays low and you win in dummy with the seven of clubs Fi nally you can lead out the ace of clubs and the rest is easy

You are not so happy if your first club was the four to dummy s queen West will later cover the ten of clubs with the jack but he will not cover the eight of clubs You will have to win the third club trick in your own hand therefore and the rest of the suit will not come in

Ann Landers

Why not let Johnny walk?

Dear Ann Landers People are talk ing a lot these days about the high prices of everything—especially gaso line The real energy crisis is in the people, not the commodities I'm refer ring to the laziness of the average American

When are we going to stop driving our kids to a school five blocks from home? In some neighborhoods, Mom rationalizes by saying she's concerned for the youngster's safety If that's the case, why doesn't she walk him to school, and walk herself back? It would do them both a world of good

Whenever the weather is bad there's a traffic jam around every school in the country You'd think our kids were a nation of legless creatures

"Poor Johnny can't walk because it's too cold "

"Poor Johnny can't walk because it's too wet "

"Poor Johnny can't walk because it's too hot "

All that's left to say is "Poor Johnny " And Mom is to blame — Mother Of Three Pairs Of Working Legs

Dear Mother Every now and then a letter pops up that gives me a chance to get out my bullhorn Thanks for this one

Walking is the simplest, cheapest and most overall beneficial exercise known to mankind It requires no les sons no investment, no equipment, no skills—just legs and the will to use them Get out and walk, folks! And re member, a sprightly gait gets those heart muscles pumping and you'll burn a few calories at the same time So walk, don't ride Save your gas your tires, and add years to your life

Dear Ann Landers I am in the pro cess of getting a divorce and have been going with a man who wants to marry me I have three school-age children He has two by his former wife Lenny claims he had been in love with me for years, but couldn't let me know be cause I was a married woman

The problem is this Whenever we go out, Lenny takes every opportunity to leave me sitting by myself while he goes off and gets chummy with other women The guy is very handsome and women go for him in a big way Lenny claims he is not the aggressor, but I'm not so sure about this All the same, it bugs me when he puts his arms around a curvy lady and lets her kiss him on the mouth This sort of thing goes on every time we go to a party

I notice, too, that whenever we are in a restaurant or bar, he can't keep his hands off the help When I tell him it's humiliating to me he says, "I do it just to bug you, honey "

Our relationship is great except for this one fault Lenny says he could never love anyone but me and after we are married he'll cut that stuff out Would you believe him? I need an an swer —Upset And Confused

Dear U And C If a man won't keep his hands off other women when he is engaged, don't expect the marriage ceremony to accomplish any miracles Most changes after marriage are for the worse

Tell Lenny you find his behavior of fensive and insulting, and that if he wants to marry you he'll have to prove he loves and respects your feelings by knocking off the braille routine with ev ery passing female

Nursing homes finding too much red tape in medicare program

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The federal government's medicare program hailed as a panacea for elderly health care when it was born eight years ago has turned into a Pandora's box for Wisconsin nursing homes

Medicare has become a financial and bureaucratic nightmare that brings despair to the elderly and confusion to nursing home officials

Dozens of Wisconsin's 500 nursing homes drop medicare every year and this fall 17 of the remaining 87 homes qualified to care for medicare patients are dropping the program

Federal government red tape is one of the main stumbling blocks

"It wasn't paying like we thought it would" said Merlin Schabel head of the Rolling Meadows Nursing home in Fond du Lac "There was so much red tape"

Much of the dilemma stems from confused hospital patients over age 65 who mistakenly assume they get nursing home care and later learn they are not covered

Only certain elderly hospital patients eligible for Social Security receive full medicare payments for the first 20 days of nursing home rehabilitation and then partial payments for the next 80 days

After that the patients must pay for themselves until they are destitute and are eligible for medicaid which allows nursing homes to break even on a per patient basis

"Our reimbursement is between $15 and $16 for the first 20 days of medicare coverage but our actual cost is in excess of $17" said Maynard Schubring administrator of the Marathon County institutions

"Costs got too much for the bookkeeper to do accounts Much time was consumed by the doctor in completing reports It was nothing but a lot of paperwork" said Sister Nathaniel of St Paul Home in Kaukauna

Rather than present the possibility that the patient may be able to get ud and then have him rejected "we are going to avoid having it" said James Fischer administrator of National Health Enterprises Inc for the Appleton area

"If there is the smallest mistake a misinterpretation if an (i) isn't dotted the billing form gets held up in the bureaucracy or is immediately rejected by the medicare people," said one Green Bay area nursing home administrator

"It requires quite a bit of staff just to handle the billing and paperwork," agreed John Miller of the Americana East nursing home in Green Bay, "and unless everything is perfect, problems arise"

Dr David Weber a Fond du Lac physician said many nursing homes feel pressure from relatives of elderly patients who fear hospitals would be much more expensive

"They don't realize that nursing homes have nurses in them They think that it's only a place to sit and vegetate" the doctor said

The basic problem is the number of people eligible for medicare in nursing homes is so small that the paperwork and the cost to the institution is not justifiable" said Amos Johnson, administrator of the Portage County Home

"The regulations are impossible to follow" said The Rev A M Jenkins administrator of the Lutheran Home in Fond du Lac "They demand of our homes what they demand of hospitals then they should pay the same price"

"We have had it with medicare" said Mary Miles of Glenn Wood nursing home in Green Bay "I would hope that every nursing home in the state would drop out Then perhaps some of the problems with the program would be corrected"

But elderly persons especially those facing illness who are eligible for medicare lament the dropping of the program across the state

Ray Hines president of the Marshfield Senior Citizens group said anyone in the area eligible for medicare must travel to nursing homes in Port Edwards or Wausau now that all local nursing homes have dropped the program

"I don't know who to blame for this" he said "But people who are not otherwise able to pay their bills should be subsidized by medicare"

Protest knocks 4 cents off lead-free gas price

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — A timely protest by two consumer groups has led to at least a tentative reduction in the price of unleaded gasoline by as much as four cents a gallon

The Federal Energy Administration (FEA) has just reversed a quick quiet move to allow oil companies to charge as much for lead-free gas as they charge for premium

The protest was filed by Consumers Union (CU) and Ralph Nader's Public Interest Research Group (PIRG) after the FEA announced May 29 that it would allow premium-level prices for the lead free fuel as of June 1 Antipollution devices in 1975 cars will require lead-free gasoline

CU and PIRG charged that the FEA was setting up "windfall profits for the heavily laden coffers of the oil companies," a form of price gouging" which is prohibited by the Congressional Conference Report accompanying the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act

They also accused the FEA of giving insufficient public notice in announcing a decision to take effect only two days later before any comments could be filed

And they contended that the oil companies had provided no evidence to support such a price In fact, they said, all available studies indicate that unleaded gasoline can be produced and marketed for little or no additional price above that of leaded gasoline

Subregular gasoline often sells for at least five cents less per gallon than premium regular, about 3 5 cents less

Of three studies cited by the consumer organizations one concluded that processing and distribution of unleaded fuel would cost less than leaded gasoline, one said it would cost the same and the third said the cost would rise only 23 of a cent

After reviewing the objection raised by the two organizations, the only negative comment received by FEA, government officials decided that the price of unleaded gasoline should not exceed that of leaded gas by more than one cent

FEA now admits that it "lacked any specific data on the costs of refining unleaded gasoline" when it issued its May 29 ruling And it conceded that it received no supporting data from the oil industry for a premium-level price

But the battle may not be over In announcing the one cent allowance, FEA again threw the matter open to comments with a broad hint that oil industry representatives may want to present a case for higher prices based on other factors not yet considered

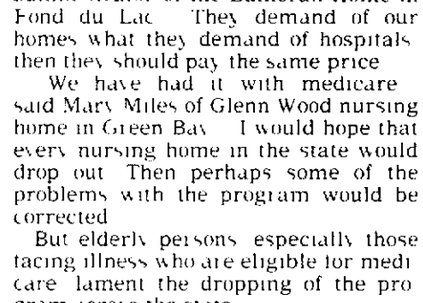

These other factors, suggested FEA may be "substitution" or "opportunity" costs because of lost output of other grades when unleaded gas is phased in more fully for cars equipped with catalytic converters It also noted the need for additional capital investment for equipment

FEA also suggested that such information might be kept confidential if it falls into the category of "trade secrets," which are exempted from public disclosure requirements

Clarence Ditlow, counsel for PIRG immediately took a dim view of these suggestions "It looks as if FEA is setting the stage for another reversal the next time for whatever the oil industry wants And the public may not even be allowed to see the supporting evidence if any"

Noting the large number of industry executives now working in FEA, Ditlow added "The agency's sympathy for big oil is all too obvious"

Valley auto crashes kill 5 during weekend

fox cities
The Post-Crescent
Monday, Aug. 19, 1974 B-1

The deaths early Sunday of three persons in two Outagamie County accidents raised to five the number of those killed in area crashes during the weekend

Killed in Sunday's accidents were Thomas R Hartlaben 16 route 1 Shiocton, Barbara L Peters 23, route 1, Shiocton, and Thomas L Glatz, 20 route 1, Black Creek

Killed in a late Saturday crash south of Clintonville were Charles Balke 21 and Mark Fandrey 22 both of Clintonville

Nine other persons died in weekend accidents around the state, raising the 1974 Wisconsin toll to 526 compared with 689 on this date one year ago

Hartlaben was dead on arrival at St Elizabeth Hospital at 2 45 a m about 1½ hours after the car in which he and four other persons were riding went out of control, crossed over the center line into a ditch, flipped twice and broke off a power pole The accident took place on State 156 near Eskman Road in the Town of Maine

Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H Kemps said Hartlaben died of a broken neck and basal skull fracture

His brother Ronald 14, remained in critical condition today at St Elizabeth He suffered a broken neck and arm injuries

The two are the sons of Mr and Mrs Le Roy Hartlaben

Three other persons were treated at St Elizabeth and later released They included the driver, Daniel C Zelzer, 17, Nichols, hip and elbow injuries, Kenneth L Moes, 16, Nichols, head, neck and elbow injuries and Tracy L Pues, 13, Navarino, neck hip and arm injuries

Zelzer told police the five had been at an area dance hall and were headed east on 156 toward Nichols He said the hood of the 1968 model auto flew up, blocking his vision and causing him to lose control of the vehicle

Zelzer told Kemps the hood's main latch was broken and that the hood was held in place only by a safety latch

The coroner is continuing his investigation, and said he has not ruled out the possibility of calling an inquest

Funeral arrangements for Hartlaben are being handled by the Muehl Funeral Home, Black Creek

Glatz and Mrs Peters died after Glatz's car and a van truck driven by Mrs Peters' husband collided at Brugger and Grandy roads

Both persons were pronounced dead at the scene by Deputy Coroner Thomas Verhagen He ruled that Mrs Peters died of severe head and chest injuries while Glatz sustained severe head injuries

Mrs Peters husband Martin 26 was reported in serious condition today at St Elizabeth with head cuts chest back and hip injuries

Police said the Peters van was northbound on Grundy and the Glatz auto eastbound on Brugger when the two vehicles collided in the unmarked intersection

Police said Glatz apparently failed to yield right of way They said the drivers vision at the corner was impaired by brush trees and corn in and near the ditch line

No time for the accident was pinpointed although authorities tentatively placed it at between 2 30 a m and 3 30 a m Peters was knocked unconscious by the impact, and he later regained consciousness He crawled to the nearby Lawrence Brugger residence and summoned help

Police were notified of the crash just after 5 15 a m Their investigation is continuing

Mrs Peters was the mother of three children none of whom were involved in the accident Her funeral arrangements are being handled by the Knutson Funeral Home in Denmark

Glatz was a graduate of Seymour High School He was employed in the laundry room of St Vincent's Hospital in Green Bay Funeral services will be 10 a m Tuesday at St Mary's Catholic Church in Black Creek Muehl Funeral Home in Seymour is handling the arrangements

The three deaths raised the county's traffic fatality toll for the year to 15 compared with 18 on this date in 1973

Balke and Fandrey were killed when Balke's auto left a curve in the southbound lane of U S 45 and wrapped around a utility pole The accident took place at 9 10 p m Saturday, but rescue workers needed nearly an hour to pry the two men from the wreckage

Balke died of a skull fracture and Fandrey of a broken neck

Both men were graduates of Clintonville High School Balke served with the army in Vietnam, having been discharged this June Fandrey was employed by a Clintonville firm

Funeral services for Balke will be 1 30 p m Tuesday at St Rose Catholic Church with burial in the St Rose cemetery at Clintonville Visitation will be at the Eberhardt Funeral Home Clintonville A prayer service has been set for 8 p m today

Graveside military services will be conducted by the local American Legion post Balke is survived by his parents Mr and Mrs Frank Balke, 129 Eighth St , eight brothers and four sisters

Funeral services for Fandrey will be 10 a m Tuesday at St Rose Catholic Church, with burial in St Peter's Lutheran Cemetery, Pella Opening Visitation will be at the Heuer Sievers & Stensrud Funeral Home, Clintonville with a prayer service set for 7 30 p m today

Fandrey is survived by his mother, Mrs Paul Fandrey, 57 N Clinton Ave , a brother and two sisters

Milton A Stark Jr , 18, of rural Fond

Armed robbery attempt reported

Calumet County authorities were investigating a reported attempted armed robbery late this morning at the home of an unidentified businessman The report was called in from the route 2, Menasha, area

Police alerted other local law enforcement agencies to be on the lookout for two subjects driving in a black and red Chevrolet with California license plates and apparently headed toward Appleton

They reportedly were seeking two young subjects in connection with the complaint The suspects were said to be wearing nylon stockings over their heads at the time of the 11 a m incident

Someone from the home reportedly fired four shots from a 22 caliber pistol at the getaway vehicle

The complaint was phoned in by a juvenile Police went to the area to investigate

Valley draws S&L firms

Post Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON — The inflationary pinch that has dried up the money markets of southern Wisconsin has not yet had — and possibly will not have — the same effects in the Fox River Valley

That is the opinion of R J McMahon commissioner of the savings and loan for Wisconsin whose office has been flooded with savings and loan branch office applications for the Valley particularly Neenah and Green Bay in the last year

'It seems to be borne out by the economists that there is still a potential for untapped savings in those areas McMahon said referring to the fact that eight Valley applications have come before him in a year 'Right now Neenah and Green Bay in particular are showing the most dynamic growth rates in the state

McMahon admitted though that the effects of inflation are slowly reducing the savings total in the Valley and that this fact, along with the increased number of savings and loan offices soon should mark the end of the area's expansion in this area

We don't really have a track record since spring McMahon stated and the present financial situation may keep more applications away But for the time being the savings and loan industry obviously feels that its capital outlay and operation costs for setting up branch offices in the Valley will be offset by the additional savings generated

McMahon also pointed out that while mortgage money is still available in the Valley savings continue to increase statewide He produced figures to show that the first seven months of 1974 produced $151 million more in savings than in the previous year

Neenah was the focal area for applications a year ago Twin Cities Savings and Loan applied for and received authorization for a new branch office in Neenah A Mutual Savings and Loan of Milwaukee application for a Neenah branch was disapproved but later resubmitted and accepted

Another application filed by Marine Saving and Loan Association of Two Rivers was disapproved because it requested a site close to the new Twin Cities branch

Appleton joined in the expansion this year when Great Midwest Savings and Loan of Milwaukee was granted a branch office charter

Green Bay's money market is under siege Applications from United Savings and Loan of Sheboygan, Marine Savings and Loan and Mutual Savings and Loan are being considered by the commissioner Earlier this year Brown County Savings and Loan was authorized to open a branch office in Ashwaubenon

The onslaught of applications has created a dilemma for McMahon He feels that disapproval of the applications may prompt federal savings and loan agencies to move into the area

Recently the Federal Home Loan Bank Board made it clear to the savings and loan industry that branch offices should be encouraged as part of the effort to "go to the people ' Federal savings and loan associations in the state are not restricted geographically, but state statutes command that state associations not open branch offices more than 100 miles from the home office

"Now I'm not saying that we re going to approve all the applications in the Fox River Valley because we're afraid the federal associations might move in if we don't " McMahon said, ' but it puts us in a ticklish position "

McMahon said there are 88 state savings and loan associations in Wisconsin and 37 federal associations

County official opposes leasing part of garage

By BILL KNUTSON
Post Crescent staff writer

The chairman of the Outagamie County Highway Committee indicated this morning that he would rather build a fire wall at the new Black Creek highway garage than enter a purchase lease agreement with a private firm that owns part of the building

Ralph Gertsch co-owner of Osborn Manufacturing Co Black Creek told the committee three weeks ago that he would work on a proposal whereby the county would sell him the garage, then he would lease it back to the county

Supv George Kroes of rural Kaukauna, highway panel chairman told a reporter today that Gertsch has not been back with his proposal

When and if Gertsch does prepare a proposal it probably would be discussed in closed committee session Kroes explained because it involves property negotiations

Kroes revealed that he and Supv Lawrence Brockman of Black Creek had talked with Gertsch's business partner, William DelMarcelle of Seymour since Gertsch's highway committee appearance three weeks ago DelMarcelle indicated a willingness to come to an agreement over the property line dispute, Kroes said

A year ago Kroes committee won county board approval of a package deal whereby an old county highway garage in Black Creek was sold to Outagamie Producers Co-op, which needed to expanded, and a replacement garage nearby was purchased from Black Creek Industries, Inc

Some county supervisors recently learned that a 1968 survey done for Osborn Manufacturing Co showed that the company's south lot line bisects a 13-foot-deep north wing of the highway garage The wing houses the garage's heating plant and lavatories

Supervisors also learned that the rest of the new garage, for which they paid $25,000, is only seven feet south of Osborn Manufacturing's line

State building codes require that when such a structure is less than 10

Meade Street informational session planned

Meade Street could become a one way couplet with Lawe Street between Wisconsin and College avenues Residents of the area will get a chance to help decide whether it does or not at an informal session with the Appleton Department of Public Works at Edison School on Aug 27

Department officials are considering widening Meade Street to make it part of a one way system when they reconstruct the street in 1976 The project is slated to run between College and Hancock Street

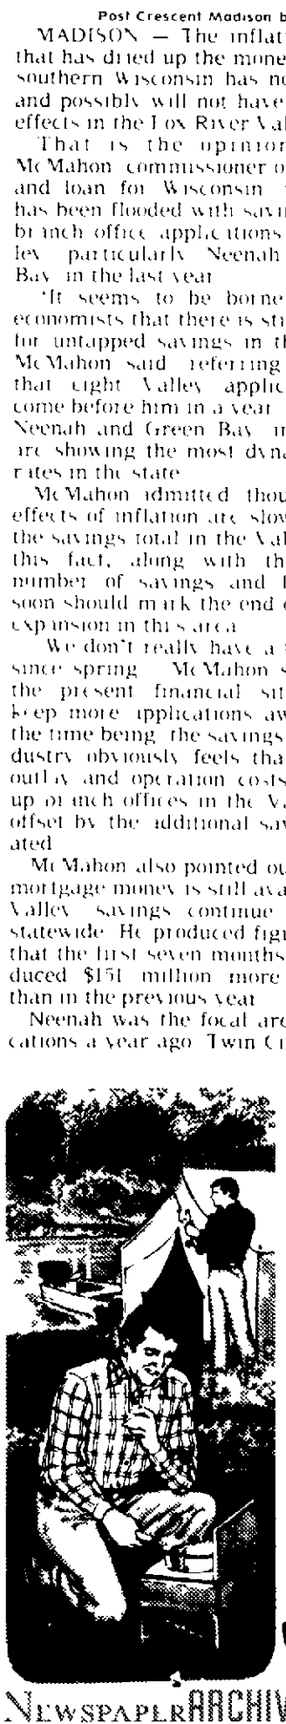

The session at Edison School which will give residents along Meade and other streets in the area a chance to voice their opinions will run from 1-3 and 6-8 p m

The department hopes to attract federal aid urban streets money to pay for up to 70 per cent of the project To do that it must draw up a plan for the 1976 project within the next few months

Officials hope to hear residents' ideas at the Aug 27 session, then go back and draw up a plan reflecting those as well as their own planning proposals

At this point department officials say they have no definite plans for the street project

In addition to residents, the department has also invited representatives of Edison School Appleton Wireworks Appleton Paper Division of NCR and the Appleton Board of Education to the session

Line opened to avert conflicts

OSHKOSH — A line of communications designed to avert conflicts before they arise will be established after a morning meeting between the chairman of the Unified Health Board and the Committee of Social Services.

The two panels appeared to be on a collision course when Supv. Ted Neely, Menasha, had talked to a social worker within the department to suggest his part time employment as mental health coordinator under the infant unified Health Board.

Members of the social services' panel raised strong objections late last month after they discovered that Neely had talked to the worker without coordinating it with Norman Whitford, social services director.

This morning Neely recounted the fact that he had first discussed it in January with Michael Lukowicz, who has been the department's mental health information and referral coordinator. Within a couple of weeks, he had sat down and talked it over with Whitford.

In March and April, there had been an exchange of letters between Whitford and Neely on the position of mental health coordinator, with Whitford recommending that the functions of three coordinating positions mandated under the unified health board might be filled through the department of social services.

Today Neely challenged Whitford's letter for not addressing a specific query about Lukowicz. "It covered a myriad of items but did not address the specific question," Neely argued.

Supv. Herman Brandt, Omro, citing the confrontation on the coordinating position, predicted that more problems would arise unless firm lines of communication were established between the two panels. His position was supported by Supv. Terry Aarons, who had been critical of the raids being made on social service personnel by agencies under purchase of service contracts to the unified board.

Neely defended his action by suggesting that county agencies will continue to lose people as better positions arise. He pointed out that as soon as the positions called for under the unified board proposal were filled, he planned to get out of staffing, suggesting that staffs should be an administrative detail handled by employes and not be a concern of the county board committee of jurisdiction.

His recommendation was that any potential problem could be ironed out through regular meetings and a solid rapport between Whitford and Donald Zboray, Parkview Mental Health Center administrator.

The social services committee agreed that staffing and minor problems were the responsibility of administrators and could be solved throgh regular contracts. They insisted, however, that policy decisions must fall within the committee's realm.

Brandt repeated his contention that the committees must get together. "We need some method to discuss our mutual problems," he said.

Neely suggested that the social services panel prepare areas of concern to serve as a basis to kick off a joint meeting. He did, however, strongly oppose discussing the Lukowicz issue on the grounds that personnel is not and should not be a committee function.

Neely pointed out that his theory was that Lukowicz should be placed on the guidance clinic payroll to provide more exposre to mental health problems. "It will broaden his knowledge," Neely said, adding that because of the growing criticism he "didn't really care whose payroll he's one."

The social services panel was also critical of Neely's personal involvement in matters of personnel.

Brandt suggested that "if we let Norm (Whitford) run the department like that, you would be the strongest objector."

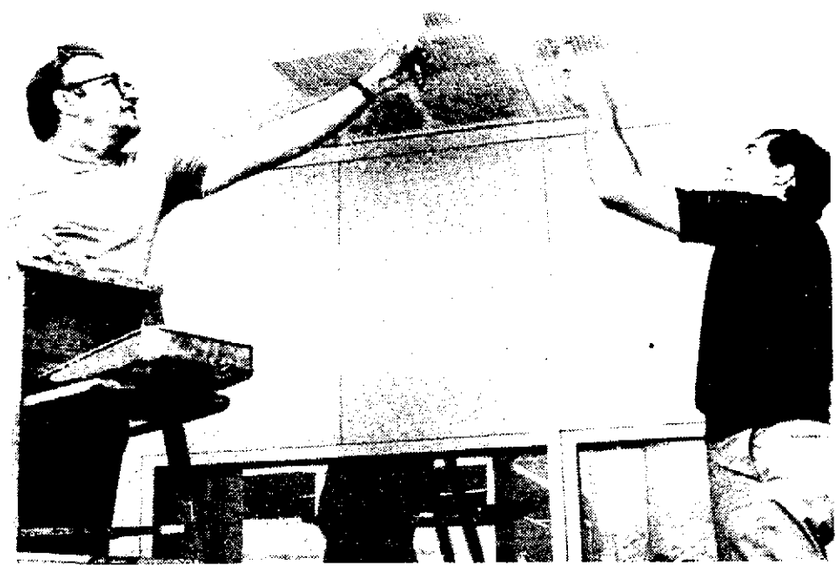

Neely admitted that he had been under some fire from his own committee because of personally handling too many items and not keeping the other members fully informed. He suggested that the uncertain configuration of the state legislation and lack of time to comply with state requirements were just a couple of the reasons why he has had to take personal charge.

Another problem is that the "state has reneged on funding" which had been pledged under the legislation. "The money was not provided in either the budget or mini-budget, and now the board is going to have to decide its priorities," Neely said.

Voters must register by Aug. 28

NEENAH-MENASHA — Voters wishing to participate in the Sept. 10 primary election must be registered in their respective municipalities by 5 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 28.

The registration deadline is set on a statewide basis, excluding areas where registration is done at the time of voting.

Registration in the cities of Neenah and Menasha must be done in person at the city offices. Regular office hours in Neenah are 8-12 a.m. and 1-4 p.m. In Menasha the hours are 8-12 a.m.and 1-4:30 p.m.

In addition, a special registration session has been scheduled in Neenah from 5 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 22, at city hall. No special session is scheduled in Menasha.

The Town of Menasha has also scheduled a special voter registration period, from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 27. Regular office hours in the Town of Menasha during which registration may take place are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

High school project supported

MENASHA — A citizens committee has been formed to promote the expansion project at Menasha High School.

The group, consisting of residents of the joint school district and calling itself the "Citizens Committee for Progressive Menasha Education," will concentrate on "getting the facts out" in time for the Sept. 10 referendum, co-chairman Donald Metz said.

Thus far, most of the official response to the $3.5 million proposal has been negative. The group hopes to counteract that, Metz said.

The fiscal control body voted Aug. 6 to put the question before the voters in a September referendum. The project calls for the expansion, remodeling and equipping of Menasha High School, along with construction and outfitting of an attached fieldhouse and rebuilding, lighting and resurfacing the track at Nathan Calder Stadium.

Metz said about 30 persons attended the one meeting that has already been held. Another meeting was tentatively set for next Monday.

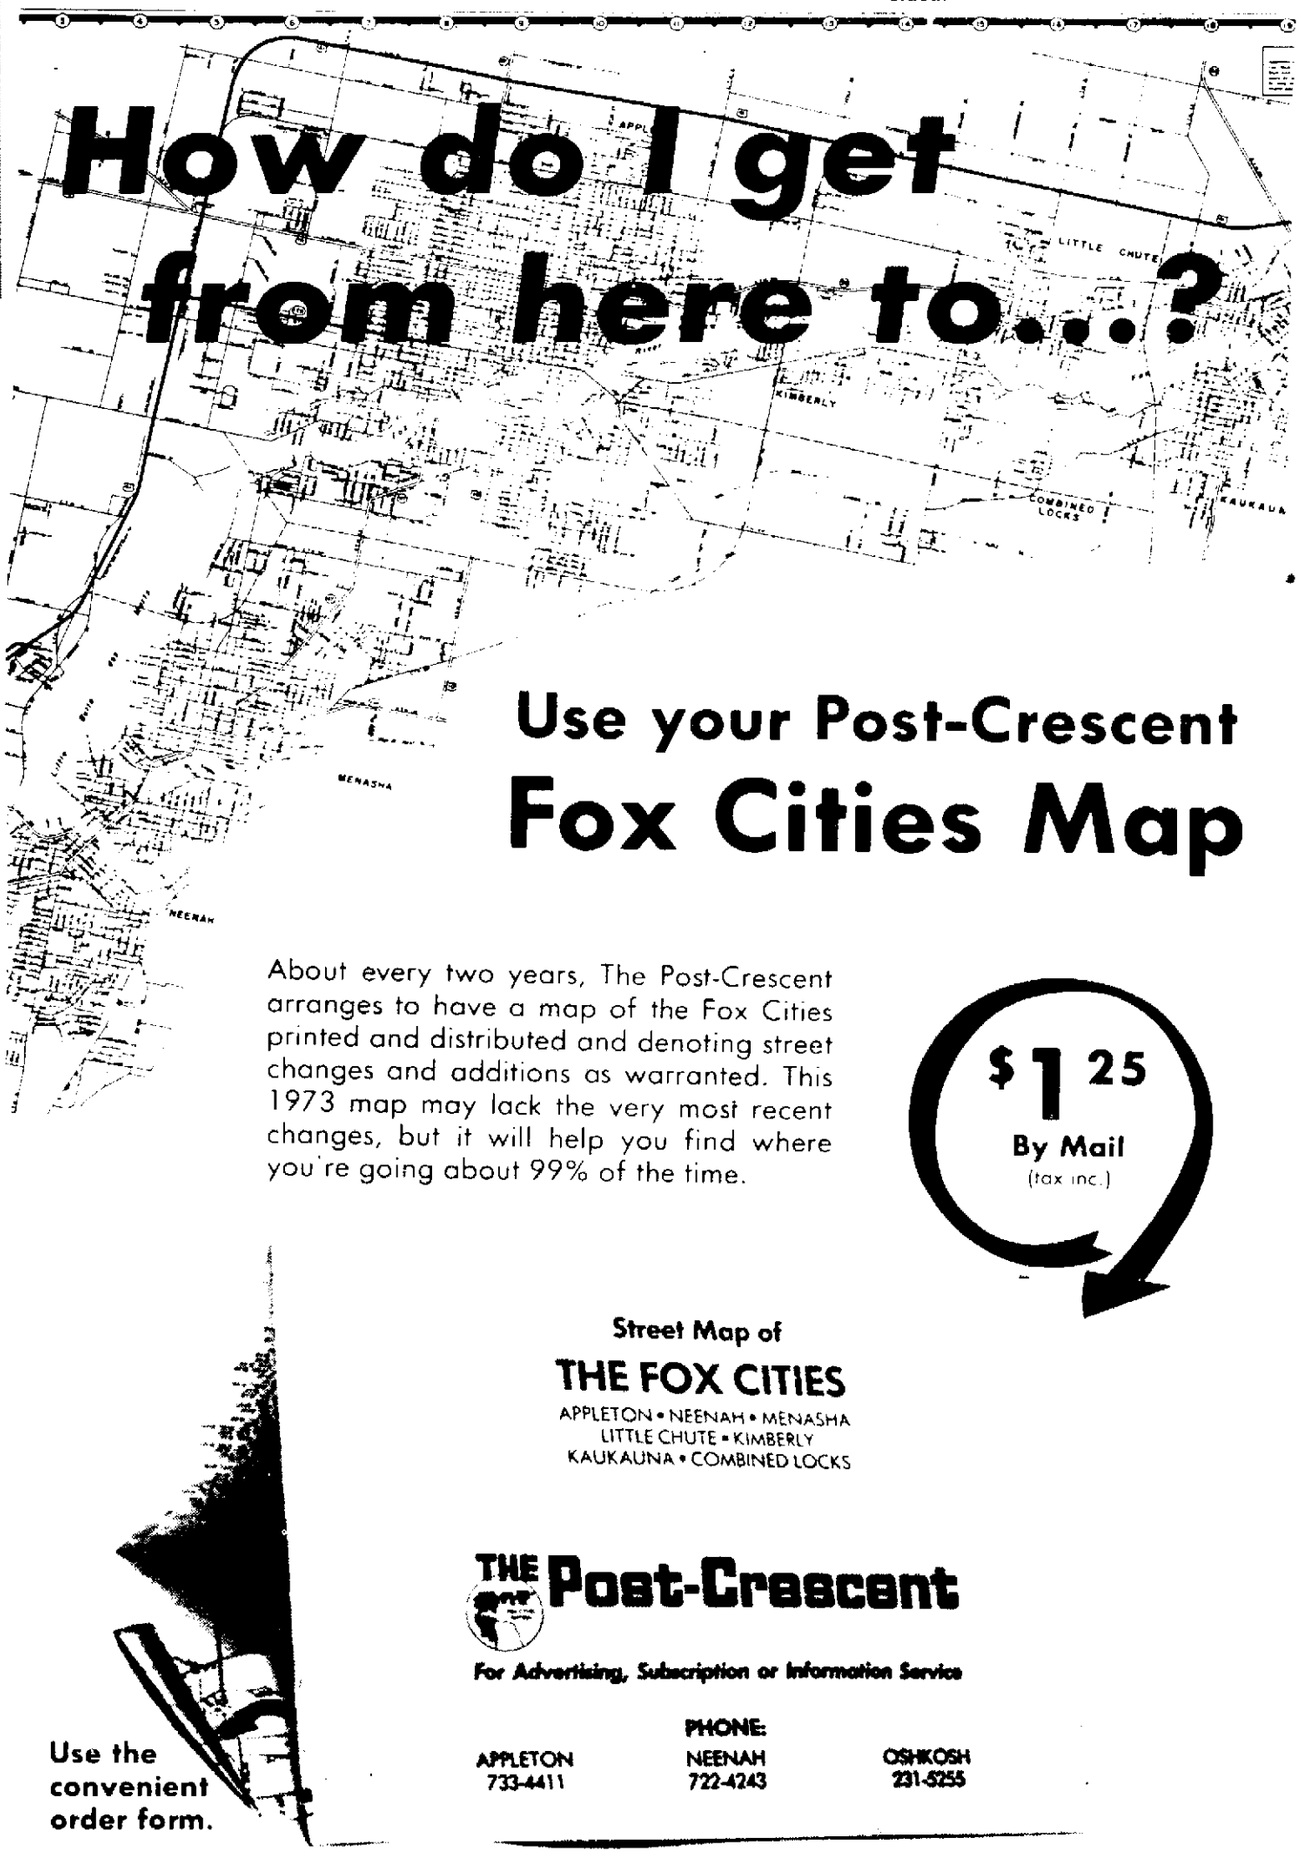

"We've looked into every facet of this thing," Metz commented. "We need it. This has been proven over and over."

Metz said the group's contention is that the project in its entirety, including the fieldhouse, is needed. Expansion is inevitable, Metz said.

A strong factor in the decision to build a fieldhouse is the dictate of a federal agency requiring school districts to provide equal physical education opportunities to both girls and boys, Metz pointed out.

Inflation is another reason. Spiraling construction costs could make an expansion more prohibitive as time goes on, he said. School officials have said the expansion would have to be sufficient until the year 2000.

Metz said the group has spent much time so far gathering facts and answers to questions, but added the exact method used to disseminate the information to the public has not been decided.

Girl taken into custody after bank robbery

OSHKOSH — A 16-year-old girl was taken into custody early this morning shortly after the Winnebago branch of fice of the Western State Bank had been burglarized of at least $1,600 in cash, Winnebago County sheriff's offi cers said

Authorities said the girl, whose name and address have not been released, is a patient at Winnebago Mental Health Institute

According to reports, the burglary occurred shortly after 4 a m at the Lakeside Branch of the bank on County Trunk A in Winnebago Deputies said entry to the building was gained by throwing a brick through a window

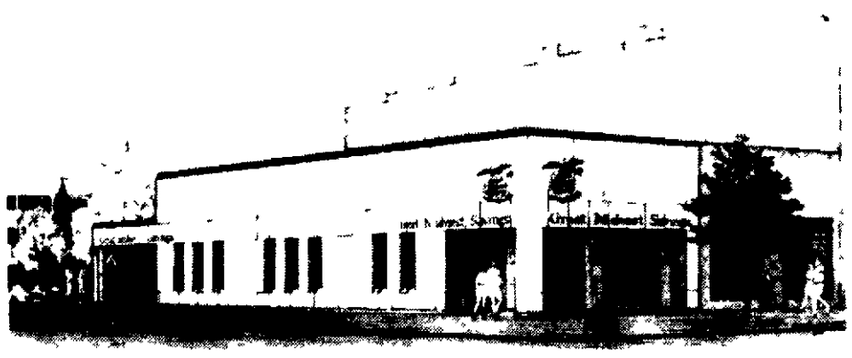

Shortly after 4 a m a sheriff's department squad car driving on U S 41 near County Trunk J in the Town of Oshkosh noticed the girl walking along the highway with money sticking out of her pockets When asked where she obtained the money, which amounted to more than $1,600 in cash, deputies said the girl had just taken it from the bank's Winnebago branch office A number of matchbooks bearing the banks's advertising also were found in her pockets

Ken Butt, manager of the bank, said an audit is being conducted to determine if any additional money was taken

The bank's alarm apparently failed to go off when the window was broken Deputies said they first heard of the burglary when they questioned the girl

As yet, sheriff's officers say no other suspects are being sought, although the FBI has been called in to work on the investigation

The girl is in custody in the Winnebago County jail Sheriff's derectives said that because of the girl's mental condition they are unsure whether she will be brought into court to face bur glary charges

New savings and loan

This is an artist s conception of the building being renovated by Great Midwest Savings and Loan Association The build ing, located at 135 E College Ave , Appleton, was formerly occupied by Pittsburg Paint & Glass Co

Great Midwest branch locating in Appleton

Great Midwest Savings and Loan Association, one of Wisconsin's largest S & L's, has begun operations at 120 N Morrison Ave in downtown Appleton

The firm will be conducting business in a temporary office at that address until renovation of the building at 135 E College Avenue is completed in early March, 1975

The new branch office will be a full service operation and will be known as the Fox Cities Office, according to Great Midwest president, Michael J Doyle It is the association's seventh full service office in the state An eighth branch is slated to be opened in the Milwaukee area

The Appleton office will be locally staffed and managed by Peter Hensler who transferred to the Fox Cities from a similar post at the Hartland branch

Hensler and his wife, who is a teacher, are living in Kaukauna He grew up in Stevens Point and attended the University of Wisconsin Whitewa ter He has been with the company for one year

Hensler said the reason the firm de cided to establish an Appleton office was "to establish new accounts in the area and to service existing accounts "

He said the Appleton office could possibly develop into one of the larger branches

Four of the bank's existing offices are located in the Milwaukee area, with another located in Hartland and one in Chilton

The temporary office is fully operational and ready to provide all services, according to Hensler These include passbook and certificate savings accounts, postage-free save-by-mail service, Keogh Plan Retirement programs, mortgage loan and home insurance service, travelers checks and money orders

Savings interest rates range from 5¼ per cent per year on regular passbook accounts to 7½ per cent on $1,000, four year investment certificates Daily compounding increases these vields to 5 39 per cent and 7 9 per cent

Renovation of the College Avenue building, which was formerly occupied by Pittsburgh Paint & Glass, began last week Total cost of the building and renovation was estimated at over $200,000

The Appleton office will be staffed by three people until additional personnel is needed

Railroad may switch operation site in Kaukauna

KAUKAUNA — The board of public works will hear about the possibility of the Chicago and North Western Railways relocating its switching operations at a 6 30 p m meeting today in council chambers

Mayor Robert La Plante said David Beatty Fond du Lac, trainmaster , the Chicago and North Western will attend the meeting Switching operations currently are carried out adjacent to the south side business district, frequently tying up traffic on State 55 The city has long sought relocation of the operations

La Plante said there is a possibility that switching and train makeup could be relocated to the north side of the city near the new industrial park, away from busy highways business or residential areas He plans to invite representatives of the East Central Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission, Kaukauna Business Associates and chamber of commerce to the meeting

Also to be discussed with Beatty will be the noise from traffic control signs which sound continually on the north side in residential areas and the possibility of train crews using walkie talkies rather than train whistles for signaling purposes Numerous citizen complaints about unnecessary noise have been received from the north side

La Plante said some costs could be involved in changing switching locations, but felt that it should be explored by the city and railway to help prevent what has become an annoying bottle neck to many motorists feet from a lot line there must be a fire wall on that side

Some supervisors were hopeful that the county could get enough land alongside the garage so the fire wall wouldn t be needed

Estimates on the cost of constructing a fire wall ranged up to $16 000 but Kroes said today he knows it won t go that high

The panel isn t interested in a purchase lease agreement, Kroes said It need be the committee would be willing to give up the small part of the building that Gertsch claims to own then construct the fire wall he explained

Kroes said he had no idea when Gertsch would return to the highway committee He indicated the committee might soon contact the state building inspector's office to find out just what type of fire wall is needed at the garage and what other improvements if any are required

Supv Eugene Kloes of Appleton suggested the committee get prices on the required work while it is awaiting Gertsch s proposal Gertsch had given no indicated what he would be willing to pay the county or what he would charge on a lease back However it was learned that at one time he had offered the county $18 000 for the garage

Players seek reply to their 'final proposal'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Football League players say the temporary suspension of their strike has failed thus far to persuade the club owners to resolve their labor dispute.

The players say they have modified their demands greatly since they ended their strike for 14 days last Wednesday but the owners have refused to bargain in good faith and have rejected all efforts to reach a new contract agreement.

It is now time for the owners to come up with a package, said Ed Garvey, union executive director, at a news conference Sunday. They have not budged at all and the cooling off period thus far has not worked.

The NFL Players Association made public what it called its final proposal saying: It is our feeling that it is time for compromise and it is time for settlement. We have done everything in our power to achieve an agreement.

The major issue in dispute, the association said, was the ouster of commissioner Pete Rozelle as arbitrator of non-injury grievances and the appointment of an impartial person to handle disputes arising out of the interpretation or application of the player contract, the constitution and by-laws or the collective bargaining agreement.

With the offer we have now put forward, we are seeking only a $75,000 per club increase in the pension and insurance area, and in other areas such as meal money, minimum salary, championship game pay, represents a lower percentage of revenues than we received in 1970 because of the new television contracts had been negotiated including the Monday night Pro Bowl telecast, said Garvey.

We have withdrawn the demand to eliminate the Rozelle Rule, leaving it to the courts and to the Congress of the United States, he said. In all other areas including trades, players placed on waivers and the option cluase we have suggested substantial compromises.

Apparently the only real issue dividing us now is impartial arbitration, he said. Here we have sought the baseball solution which allows the commissioner to continue jurisdiction over integrity of the game issues, whereas the other grievances are handled by an impartial arbitrator, said Garvey.

In New York, John Thompson, executive director of the NFL Management Council, said the players' latest set of demands had already been rejected by the owners, who plan to submit a counterproposal.

The proposal which they stressed was their final one does as much as anything to show how far apart we stand after five months of bargaining, said Thompson. It contains two brand new proposals which we had not even discussed. We were shocked to have two brand new proposals in our laps at the 11th hour.

He said the players demanded that squad sizes not be reduced below 47 players and that player contracts not be tolled, both of which had not been discussed previously.

We thought we were near agreement and were getting someplace, said Thompson. I guess the problem is that we started so far apart.

Foxes win, cut 'magic number'

DANVILLE, Ill. — Mike Wolf slapped three hits, Clyde Jeter drove in three runs and Jim Geddes throttled Danville on six hits Sunday as the Appleton Foxes posted a 5-2 Midwest League victory.

The victory was Appleton's 11th in 13 games. The Foxes split a doubleheader in Decatur Saturday, winning the first 12-7 and losing the second 3-0.

Appleton owns a 38-16 second half record and retains an eight game lead over Wisconsin Rapids which also won two and lost one during the weekend.

The Foxes' magic number for clinching the second half title is down to four. Any combination of four Appleton wins or Wisconsin Rapids losses will give them the title. Eleven games, including a nine game homestand beginning Tuesday, remain on Appleton's schedule.

Wolf doubled to left to open the Foxes' third. With two out, Jeter tripled in the right-center gap to score the run.

Danville got four straight hits in the third to take a 2-1 lead. With two out, Sal Rosario tripled, Dennis Holmberg doubled in a run and Rick Richardson singled in Holmberg. Neil Rasmussen also singled but Geddes retired the side.

Appleton, with help from Danville, took the lead in the sixth. Jeter walked but was picked off first by losing pitcher Gerry O'Neill. Richardson made a bad throw to second to let Jeter out of the hot box. Nick Medrano swung at a low pitch which got away from the catcher and reached first after striking. Ray Rudacille then brought Jeter home with a sacrifice fly to left and Medrano moved to second on the throw to the plate. Medrano stole third and scored when catcher Gil Stafford's throw went into left field.

Appleton added a pair of runs in the seventh off Tom Widmar, son of Milwaukee Brewer pitching coach Al Widmar. Wolf led off with his second double and Eric Thomas beat out an infield single. Jeter singled to left to score both runners.

Geddes worked out of trouble in the sixth when Danville had two hits and a walk to fill the bases. He fanned Sam Killingsworth to end the threat. Geddes is 3-2.

Bobby Combs, 6-6, will pitch for Appleton tonight against Sam Hinds, 8-7.

Packer passing continues to show improvement

By CLIFF CHRISTL
Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Besides the 3-0 record, probably the most encouraging aspect of the Green Bay Packers' play in the pre-season has been the increased proficiency of the passing attack.

Ever since Bart Starr's arm went dead in the late 60s, the Packers' passing game has been one of the most anemic in the National Football League. But so far in the exhibition season, the Packers have posed a dual threat.

Again Saturday night in a 20-10 victory over the Chicago Bears, they traveled as successfully through the air as they did on the ground.

Starting quarterback Jerry Tagge completed 13 of 22 passes for 141 yards and three touchdowns. Nor did he allow any passes to be intercepted. Most importantly, on third down situations, he was five for nine, which figures to a healthy .555 conversion rate.

Patiently discussing the improvement of the aerial attack during post-game interviews Saturday night, Tagge said: We're going to have more balance this year. But passing is not the big key. It's that when you have to, complete it you can.

In recent years, that has been a lingering ailment. The Packers had their least success through the air when they most needed it.

Once the veterans are playing regularly and everybody is at full strength, the Packers may still encounter difficulties. But there have been encouraging signs.

Since I've been here, I can tell there is more confidence in the passing game, tight end Rich McGeorge who checked into camp just a week ago said after the win over the Bears.

There is more confidence by everyone, the coaching staff as well as the receivers and the quarterbacks. And that's going to help a great deal.

A number of times since camp opened, Devine has said more stress is being placed on the passing game during practice. And no doubt that has helped.

So apparently, has the maturity. Tagge has gained as a professional. I feel better. I feel more comfortable, he explained. The thing I'm getting is experience, and I'm more relaxed out there.

I've got more confidence in myself. We've always had good receivers and the protection. It's just a matter of getting playing time.

The addition of a quarterback coach to the staff this season has benefited the passing attack, according to Tagge.

The big difference between this year and last year is Perry Moss, the former Nebraska and Green Bay West quarterback, said: I've got one boss to be concerned with. I've got one guy telling me what to do and one guy working with me.

Tagge, by the way, received one of two game balls awarded by the coaching staff after they viewed the films Sunday. The other went to defensive lineman Dave Purefory.

Commenting on Tagge's play during a late Sunday afternoon press conference, Devine said: It's still early in the pre-season, but Jerry is a real student of football. He's worked hard at it and he's quite a bit improved (over last year).

Tagge has been calling most of his own plays during the exhibition season and Devine said that would probably continue into the regular season.

In further discussion of the game, Devine said: As far as pointing out individual people, I'm not going to do much of that because there was a team effort.

But I think I'd have to mention (Pete) Van Valkenberg. He was impressive in his first appearance. And Jim Carter made a great play on a screen pass one time. It was a mid-season play.

In response to a question about running back Larry Krause, Devine re-

Brewers' 'cheap hits' overpower California

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Whatever it is about the California Angels that brings out the best in the Milwaukee Brewers worked again Sunday.

The Brewers didn't exactly overpower Angel pitchers, but collected the almost unheard of total of eight infield singles. They managed seven other hits, received clutch pitching from Jim Slaton and Tom Murphy and won their fifth game in their last six starts, 5-2.

We call that scientific hitting, batting coach Harvey Kuenn said of the infield hits.

The spurt, which followed a spell of 11 defeats in 13 games, left the fifth place Brewers 8½ games behind first place Boston in the American League East but only four behind runnerup Cleveland. It was the Brewers' seventh victory in nine starts against California this year.

I'm not saying anything about the game, Angel Manager Dick Williams grumbled. Anything I would say would be derogatory. They had a bunch of cheap hits.

Bruce Bochte hit his second homer of the year, a two-run shot, for the Angels in the first inning. But Milwaukee moved ahead 3-2 in the third against loser Ed Figueroa (2-7) on singles by Tim Johnson, Dave May, Don Money, Charlie Moore and George Scott.

The Brewers punched over a pair of insurance runs in the eighth after a walk and a stolen base by pinch runner Bobby Mitchell. Bob Coluccio singled in Mitchell. A single by Tim Johnson and a walk filled the bases and Money drove in a run by beating out a chopper to third.

Slaton (9-14) left in favor of Murphy after allowing a one out single by Denny Doyle in the seventh. Murphy, an ex-Angel, threw a double play ball to Rudy Meoli and checked California on two hits the rest of the way to earn his 14th save.

Brewer Manager Del Crandall said Clyde Wright, another ex-Angel, will be replaced in the starting rotation by Eduardo Rodriguez. Wright (8-18) leads major league pitchers in defeats, including his last seven decisions.

Wright, once a 20 game winner, said he is working on a knuckleball and hopes to perfect it during the winter.

The Brewers move to Oakland tonight and plan to pitch Billy Champion (7-2) against Vida Blue (14-10).

Tiant first with 19 wins

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Luis Tiant didn't exactly pitch well enough to win his 19th [illegible] Sunday, but did.

But then things aren't always what they seem.

Tiant was cuffed around for 11 hits in 7⅓ innings Sunday and was sent packing when Minnesota erupted for six runs in the eighth inning.

By then, though, Boston had given the veteran right-hander an eight-run cushion. So the Red Sox held on for a 9-6 triumph and Tiant became the only pitcher in the major leagues with 19 wins.

Bushy meanwhile, pitched a six-hitter against Baltimore — but the fifth hit was Paul Blair's double in the ninth inning and the sixth was Brooks Robinson's single.

So instead of getting victory No. 19, Busby wound up with defeat No. 10 as the Orioles squeezed out a 1-0 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Chicago's Wilbur Wood had a shot at No. 19 too. But he took an early shower and loss No. 14 instead when the White Sox absorbed a 9-4 beating by the New York Yankees.

In Sunday's other American League games, the Texas Rangers nosed out Cleveland 10, the Oakland A's clobbered Detroit 13-3 and the Milwaukee Brewers beat California 5-2.

Tiant was rocked for all six Minnesota runs in the eighth, three on Larry Hisle's 17th home run. Then Diego Segui took over and slammed the door on the Twins.

Orioles 1, Royals 0

Dave McNally outdueled Busby in the Orioles' victory over Kansas City, pitching a seven-hitter and wrecking the Royals' only serious threat with a neat pickoff play and some clutch hurling.

Yankees 9, White Sox 4

New York had Thurman Munson and Elliott Maddox — which was more than enough. Munson drove in three runs with two doubles and Maddox hit a homer, his first of the year, which chased Wood.

Rangers 1, Indians 0

Ferguson Jenkins pitched a four-hitter, struck out five batters and walked one for Texas. And Fritz Peterson pitched a four-hitter, struck out five batters and walked one for Cleveland.

But one of the Rangers' hits was Jeff Burroughs' 24th home run. With it, he became the first player in the majors this year to reach 100 runs batted in.

A's 13, Tigers 3

Reggie Jackson and Gene Tenace slugged three-run homers in a nine-run eighth inning and Joe Rudi and Pat Bourque drove in two runs apiece in Oakland's rout of the Tigers.

Dodger lead shrinks again

Jim Wynn says Los Angeles' 10-3 thumping Sunday at the hands of the Pittsburgh Pirates may be just what the reeling Dodgers needed ... and it came in handy for the Cincinnati Reds, too.

While the Dodgers were suffering their sixth consecutive setback, the Reds were edging the New York Mets 6-5 to climb within 2½ games of front-running Los Angeles in the National League's West Division.

The Dodgers' margin is the smallest since they led Houston by two games on May 9 and it's the closest the Reds have been since they trailed by three games way back on April 26. They were 10½ out as recently as mid-July.

Elsewhere, the St. Louis Cardinals downed the San Francisco Giants 4-1, the Philadelphia Phillies turned back the Atlanta Braves 7-4, the Houston Astros blanked the Montreal Expos 3-0 and the Chicago Cubs clobbered the San Diego Padres 14-6.

Center fielder Wynn offered his theory after the Pirates pounded out 17 hits, most against the Dodgers this season, including home runs by Bob Robertson and Richie Zisk.

The Dodgers have scored only 11 runs in their six-game slide.

Sunday's assault against Geoff Zahn and three relievers also included two doubles by Robertson, one apiece by Zisk and Rennie Stennett, a two-run single by Willie Stargell and seven-hit pitching by Larry Demery and Dave Giusti.

Reds 6, Mets 5

The Reds nailed down the triumph when Dave Concepcion blasted a tie-breaking three-run homer off Jon Matlack in the seventh inning after an intentional two-out walk to Tony Perez. Cardinals 4, Giants 1

John Curtis pitched a five-hitter for the Cards' fourth straight victory and also singled home two sixth-inning runs off Tom Bradley. Curtis restricted the Giants to one unearned run.

St. Louis got a first-inning run on Reggie Smith's single and Bake McBride's triple. Mike Tyson's sacrifice fly boosted the lead to 2-0 in the fourth. Phillies 7, Braves 4

Bill Robinson, Mike Schmidt and Willie Montanez homered for Philadelphia in support of Dick Ruthven's six-hit pitching.

Ruthven had real trouble only in the third inning, when the Braves scored three runs, two on Ralph Garr's homer. Astros 3, Expos 0

Milt May's two-run homer and Bob Watson's solo shot backed Dave Roberts' five-hit pitching. Montreal's Tom Walker was cruising along with a two-hitter going into the seventh. Cubs 14, Padres 6

Pitcher Steve Stone's two-run single highlighted Chicago's six-run third inning and Steve Swisher and Jose Cardenal homered for the Cubs. Swisher broke a 1-1 tie in the second inning with his fourth homer of the season, a two-run shot, and the Cubs chased Bill Greif with their big third.

Kimberly State Bank wins KAC tourney title

KAUKAUNA — Kimberly State Bank defeated Pat's Bar, 6-0, to win the Kaukauna Athletic Club's 3rd Annual 16-inch Invitational softball title.

Dave Van Hammond was the winning pitcher and Ken Dollevoet slammed two homers for Kimberly State Bank. Dollevoet was named the tourney's MVP.

Kimberly Hardware outscored Hill's, 12-10, to win the consolation title. Steve Rastell was the winning pitcher. Steve Hill led the losers with 4-for-4 including a homer. Mark Siedl homered for the winners.

Cornet Farm beat Buzz' Bowl, 6-2, for the third place trophy. Dave Just was the winning pitcher.

In late Saturday games, Ridge Runner topped Kozy Korner, 12-5 behind Dennis Nienhaus and Cornet Farm edged Beaver and Vrone's, 5-4, in 11 innings. Dick Aerts homered and Dick Johnson doubled and tripled for Ridge Runner, while Dave Just was the winner for Cornet Farm. Cornet's winning run scored on two errors, a walk and sacrifice fly.

In other games Sunday, Kimberly Hardware beat Deuce's 12-5, Pat's Bar downed Buzz' Bowl 8-5, Hill's beat Ridge Runner 6-2 and Kimberly State Bank nipped Cornet 3-2.

Ken Dollevoet homered for Kimberly State and Van Hammond was the winning pitcher.

Highlights from other games were: Wayne Nackers going 4-for-4, Marty Nackers homering, Mike Moser hitting two homers, Bob Zuleger homering, Dick Siebers homering, Glenn Hill homering, Dick Aerts homering and Pete Hanaway hitting two triples.

Carl Ploetz was presented the spectator award, Joyce & Tuggy's the sportsmanship award and Wolfinger Pump Service the beer drinking trophy.

Andretti increases point standings lead with win

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Mario Andretti has tightened his hold on first place in United States Auto Club dirt track point standings with a victory in a 100-mile race at the Illinois State Fairgrounds.

The veteran driver took the lead on the first lap and never gave it up, pushing his Fordpowered car to an average of 91.89 miles an hour Sunday on the one-mile oval. His time was 1:05:2.5.

"I don't think I've ever driven a race car that worked as well as this one today," Andretti said after the Tony Bettenhausen Memorial race. "I couldn't believe it."

The victory, coupled with a first place finish Saturday in dirt track racing at Sedalia, Mo., gave Andretti 560 points for the season. Tom Bigelow of Whitewater, Wis., who finished second Sunday, holds second place in point standings with 440.

Two races remain on the dirt track circuit — Sept. 2 at DuQuoin, Ill., and Sept. 7 at Indianapolis, Ind.

Andretti, last year's runner up in dirt track standings, was pushed by Jimmy Caruthers of Anaheim, Calif., until the 73rd lap when Caruthers left the race with a piston failure.

Following Bigelow in third place was Greg Weld of Kansas City, who had the fastest qualifying time of 34.20 for one lap.

Al Unser, who won the dirt track point championship last year, was entered in Sunday's race but could not run after his car was damaged in a pileup on the first lap at Sedalia on Saturday.

A.J. Foyt finished 16th after leaving the race on the 36th lap with a universal joint problem.

In stock car racing at the fairgrounds Saturday, Roger McCluskey of Tucson, Ariz., pushed his 1972 Dodge to victory in the 100-mile Allen Crowe Memorial race, averaging 83.179 miles an hour.

Norm Nelson of Racine, Wis., finished second and Jigger Sirois of Hammond, Ind., finished third.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Here are the top ten finishers in Sunday's Tony Bettenhausen Memorial Race at the Illinois State Fairgrounds:
1. Mario Andretti, Nazareth, Pa.
2. Tom Bigelow, Whitewater, Wis.
3. Greg Weld, Kansas City.
4. Ralph Liguori, Tampa, Fla.
5. Mel Cornett, Wauwatosa, Wis.
6. Bill Puterbaugh, Indianapolis.
7. Billy Casella, Wintersville, Ohio.
8. Darl Harrison, Tiffin, Ohio.
9. Bill Engelhart, Madison, Wis.
10. Lee Osborne, Lebanon, Pa.

International outboard title to Oshkosh man

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bob Hering of Oshkosh, Wis., won the world OZ class Union of International Motorboating outboard title Sunday on the Meramec River.

Hering won two of the four 20-minute heats on a 1.8 mile course, and finished second and third in the others in his Mercury Marine craft.

Barry Woods of Vancouver, Wash., piloting a Evinrude Rotary craft, was second overall as he won two races and placed third and seventh in the others.

Police launch mammoth effort to find alphabet bomber in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A thousand extra police assigned to the so called alphabet bomber" case have received more than 200 calls on the identity of the man who has claimed responsibility for at least two bombs in the Los Angeles area

Hoax calls on Sunday forced the closing of the Delta, Hughes Airwest and Pacific Southwest Airlines terminals at Los Angeles International Airport as well as the downtown Greyhound bus depot and the Shrine Auditorium But no explosives were found

The beefed-up police force of 1 600 officers searched several other locations, including the Watts Summer Festival parade route and a rally for New York evangelist Frederick Eikerenkoetter, better known as Reverend Ike No bombs were found

A lot of people feel they recognize the voice or know somebody similar who may have some reason to do something like that said Sgt Dwight Stewart of the Los Angeles police department s criminal conspiracy division

' Most of the calls are on voice recognition after listening to a tape from the man on the news

A calm-sounding man identifying himself as Isaac Rasim told the Los Angeles Herald Examiner in a telephone call Saturday that "we have postponed our activities pending whatever will happen next Sunday is off Nothing will happen '

Rasim is the self proclaimed leader of Aliens of America, a group he says is responsible for the Aug 6 bombing at the Los Angeles Airport and the planting of a 25 pound bomb in a downtown bus depot locker Friday night Three persons were killed in the airport bombing, but police were warned by a caller of the bus depot bomb which they found before it exploded

Rasim vowed to "write our name in blood and said 'A' was for airport and 'L' was for locker and life The letter 'I' presumably was due for the third explosion

In three tapes delivered to radio stations Rasim has said his group would explode more bombs including on Capitol Hill in Washington unless all immigration laws are repealed and unless two retired Los Angeles police officers are arrested for murder in the 1970 mistake slayings of two Mexican nationals

Rasim s nationality so far has escaped detection Language experts in Washington who have studied the tapes believe Rasim s accent is Hungarian Estonian or Lithuanian

Authorities said a massive explosion which destroyed a warehouse and burned several buildings in downtown Los Angeles Saturday night was not caused by a bomb but by a chemical ignition

But residents here were obviously jittery

Only 6 000 of an expected 20 000 people showed up at the rally for Reverend Ike And the Watts Summer Festival Concert at the Los Angeles Coliseum headlined by vocalist Stevie Wonder attracted only about 3 000 persons It drew around 75 000 persons last year

Sen. Proxmire warns against overspending

WASHINGTON (AP) —Sen William Proxmire warned today that federal spending may run $5 billion above the $305 billion budget request this year despite congressional success in cutting fund requests by more than $6 billion

The reasons are the increased cost of interest on the federal debt, a supplemental defense request, veterans benefits, release of previously impounded funds and inflation, the Wisconsin Democrat said in a statement

' What this means is that the President and the Congress must now get together and decide where further spending can be cut, slowed down, stretched out or stopped altogether if we are even to stay within the original $305 billion budget level," he said

Proxmire said he is convinced that President Ford can cut spending to $295 billion if he "uses his present great good will to the fullest "

' Congress has done the best job of cutting appropriations that it has done in years, ' the senator said, noting the Senate Appropriations Committee decision to cut more than $5 billion from the defense budget and likely reductions in foreign aid and the measure affecting the Department of Health, Education and Welfare

Congress and the President must now face the fact that even with all our hard efforts, fiscal year 1975 spending will be a mammoth $40 billion or 15 per cent over last year at a time when we face the worst inflation in our peacetime history," Proxmire said "This is pouring gasoline on the fires of inflation with a vengeance '

He urged Ford and Congress to ask every agency to get out their red pencils erasers and scissors and cut, cut cut

Overly refined foods blamed for many diseases of Western world

CHICAGO (AP) — Overly refined foods are responsible for diseases of Western civilization ranging from heart ailments to appendicitis and varicose veins, according to a study from South Africa

The research report, published in the Aug 19 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, connects the increase in a number of diseases to removel of indigestible fibers from foods

The researchers also associated refined foods with diverticular disease of the colon, gallbladders, hernia of the gastrointestinal tract, hemorrhoids of the colon and rectum, and obesity

The authors are Drs D P Burkitt and N S Painter of London and Dr A R P Walker of Johannesburg, South Africa

The diseases they cite began to appear more frequently in western nations as flour and other carbohydrate foods became more refined, they report

'n Africa where coarsely processed grains still make up the basic diet, such disease conditions are either exceedingly rare or almost unknown they said

However they are being seen more frequently with the adoption of western dietary habits in urbanized African areas

"Many diseases common in and characteristic of modern western civilization have been shown to be related to the amount of time necessary for the passage of intestinal content through the alimentary tract, and to the bulk and consistency of stools, the authors say

"These factors have in turn been shown to be greatly influenced by the fiber content of the diet and by the amount of cereal fiber in particular " they add

The function of cereal fiber has been almost completely ignored probably because it contributes no calories and has scarcely any nutritional value ' the researchers write adding

"Cereal fiber is necessary not only for the bulk it provides, but also for its effect on the chemical and bacteriological processes that take place in the intestine '

Foods containing indigestible fibers produce more bulk and pass through the body more quickly than more refined foods

Their report said fibers also help clear the system of bile salts, which if they remain might lead to cancer of the colon and rectum

And they say fibers also help remove cholesterol from the system When this fatty substance remains in the body it accumulates in the blood vessels and contributes to coronary artery disease

the Greek Cypriots But after the government repeatedly broadcast denials and a late-night appeal by President Glafcos Clerides the people began to return again today

Life in the Greek Cypriot quarter of Nicosia began to pick up More and more shops were opening and more and more people returned from villages in the mountains

The government estimated a total of 200 000 Greek Cypriots were refugees from the Turkish advance It appealed to international relief organizations and foreign governments for help British officials said possibly 70 000 of the refugees were in the British base area at Dhekelia on the southwest coast It said most of these were camping in the open and the base bakeries are working overtime to provide bread for them

In Athens more than 3 000 Greeks demonstrated through much of Sunday night in Constitution Square chanting Greece save Cyprus and Americans Out When the police moved in with water cannons to disperse the crowd the demonstrators pelted the police with stones and bottles Seven policemen were injured and the police took 23 persons into custody but released 19 of them later

Ford pledges to help veterans

over computer breakdowns in sending out VA checks

"I don't like red tape or any other kind of tape," Ford declared

He said he wanted VA hospitals to be "the best medical skill and dedication can create," and that VA medical and nursing care for older people "must become a showcase for the entire nation "

Ford said "the time has come to stop thinking of veterans in terms of different wars We all march to the same drummer in service to the nation "

"I will not tolerate any discrimination against veterans, especially those who served honorably in Vietnam," he said

Ford declared he "was deeply concerned ' about employment opportunities 'or Vietnam veterans where "tough problem areas remain ' He cited unemployment for veterans between age 20 and 24 as nearly 10 per cent now and that it was 19 per cent for young veterans from minority groups

"Far too many disabled veterans are still without jobs ' he said

This administration puts a high priority on aiding the men who bore the brunt of battle,' the President said

Stepping from the plane on his arrival in Chicago Ford was greeted by Gov Daniel Walker and other dignitaries shook hands with some of the crowd and delivered a short talk

"We've got a lot of work to do ' he said and "we re going to accomplish what has to be done both at home and abroad "

He spoke of the need for "a little belt tightening and sacrificing, but added 'I'm sure we can do the job with God's help

After his return to Washington Ford and his wife planned to hold a very small and private reception at the White House for Secret Service agents assigned to protect him during his vice presidency and their wives his spokesman said

About the time Ford took off from Washington for Chicago, word was received of the shooting of U S Ambassador Rodger Davies in Nicosia Cyprus by a mob of Greek Cypriots

A statement issued aboard Air Force One said "the President was shocked and deeply saddened by "the tragic incident "

White House Press Secretary Jerald F terHorst said Ford talked with Secretary of State Henry A Kissinger at the White House before departing for Chicago He said he was not certain when and how Ford was first told of the incident

Later a spokesman said Ford had dispatched a plane to Beirut for Davies' 20-year-old daughter and 16 year-old son and to fly Davies body to Washington

About 5,000 Greek-Americans demonstrated as the President's motorcade arrived at the Conrad Hilton Hotel They carried banners which read 'Turks Get Out of Cyprus ' Ford Partition Kissinger Not Cyprus and 'Hypocrite Kissinger Return the Nobel Prize "

The crowd was orderly and there were no incidents, but the President sat down in the limousine as he approached the Hilton and did not stand and wave to the crowds as he had done earlier in the motorcade on Michigan Avenue

Ford had accepted an invitation to address the 75th annual convention of the VFW when he was vice president and he elected to keep the date as President Aides said he considered it a good forum for his first foreign policy speech

It will be Ford s sixth visit to Chicago since last October Five previous visits were made during his extensive travels as vice president

Ford and his wife Betty will return to Washington after his speech

For the first time in 19 years the Democratic mayor of Chicago Richard J Daley was not on hand to greet a visiting President The 72 year old mayor is still under treatment following major surgery required to clear a blocked artery after he suffered a stroke last May

Naked hitchhiker wins ride to jail

RICHFORD, N Y (AP) — After finding little success with his thumb a frustrated hitchhiker doffed his clothes Sunday in hopes of attracting a ride

The ride he attracted was a Tioga County sheriff s patrol car which promptly took him to court The hitchhiker, identified as Richard Spadaro 25, of New York City told arresting officers he took off his clothes to attract a woman driver

Spadaro was sentenced to 15 days in jail and fined $100 for disturbing the peace

Plane misses houses, kills pilot in crash

NEW RICHMOND Wis (AP) — A New Richmond man was killed Sunday evening when the plane he was piloting crashed near the New Richmond Municipal Airport

The St Croix County sheriff s office identified the dead man as Ed Kaiser

It was believed that the pilot was trying to land the aircraft when it crashed near a country road missing a row of houses about five blocks from the airport

The Federal Aviation Administration has ordered an investigation of the crash

Sam Snead triumphs

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Sam Snead, the 62-year-old golfing legend, defeated Sweden's Sven Tumba in a three-hole exhibition match before some 2,000 fans on Sunday.

The field bunched on lap 170 when Gary Bowsher, 18-year-old son of veteran driver Jack Bowsher, tried to pass his father and bumped Unser. The younger Bowsher's car hit the wall, caught fire and burst into flame. He left the race shaken up but not seriously hurt.

The mishap enabled Hartman to pass Unser and they ran virtually even until the third last lap when their cars approached Dave Chase, who was running a lap behind. Hartman passed Chase on the inside lane, passed Unser in the process and kept his narrow lead the rest of the way.

He finished less than a length ahead of Trickle, Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., and ... more than a length in front of Unser, who said he had a broken valve spring on the last 30 laps.

Grant wants win over Miami

By ANDY LIPPMAN
AP Sports Writer

The veterans are in—and many rookies feel they're on the way out—as both the Miami Dolphins and the Minnesota Vikings plan to make extensive use of their established stars during tonight's rematch of last January's Super Bowl participants.

"We're going after this game to win it, more than running people in to look at them," said Coach Bud Grant, whose Vikings were beaten by the Dolphins in the National Football League title game 24-7.

Miami Coach Don Shula said he also will go basically with his veterans during the remainder of his team's preseason schedule.

But while the veterans, who came back to both camps Wednesday in the "cooling off" agreement that halted the NFL Players Association strike, were back in their familiar roles, both teams were still loaded with rookies. Minnesota dressed 72 players and the Dolphins carried 75.

Ken Polke, who went from No. 1 quarterback for Miami at the start of the strike to No. 4 with Bob Griese, Earl Morrall and Don Strock in camp, said, "I'm stagnating right now.

"Sure I expected it to happen. But it's a real shocker to have busted your butt for a month and a half, playing most of the time and then—in a space of a few hours—be on the fourth team."

In NFL action Sunday, there were still plenty of empty seats despite the return of familiar faces as Denver beat San Francisco 10-3, St. Louis bombed San Diego 48-14, Buffalo edged Washington 16-15 and New England beat New Orleans 7-3.

There were only 5,184 in Seattle for the Cardinal-Chargers game, while 17,000 tickets were refunded in San Francisco for the game between the Broncos and the 49ers.

The Los Angeles Rams bombed the Kansas City Chiefs 58-16 Saturday, the New York Giants beat the New York Jets 21-13; Pittsburgh downed Philadelphia in overtime, 33-30; Baltimore trounced Cleveland 37-3; Cincinnati trimmed Atlanta 13-7 in overtime; Green Bay defeated Chicago 20-10 and Dallas upended Houston 19-13.

Oakland buried Detroit 41-10 Friday night.

The sparse crowd in Seattle, where the game had been moved from Memphis, watched as the Cardinals exploded for four second-quarter touchdowns Sunday including two by hometown hero Terry Metcalf.

Randy Gradishar, Denver's star linebacker, intercepted a pass and ran 83 yards for a touchdown with four minutes remaining to provide the margin of victory for the Broncos.

The Denver defense closed off a final San Francisco scoring threat at the Denver 10yard line when safety John Pitts intercepted a pass by Tom Owen with 1:30 left in the game.

The crowd of 29,908 was the smallest for the 49ers since their move to Candlestick Park three years ago.

Sunday night, Buffalo slipped by Washington 16-15 on John Leypoldt's 52-yard field goal with five seconds left in the game.

Saturday, Kansas City was helpless before the onslaught of Los Angeles veterans led by Jim Bertelsen, Lawrence McCutcheon and new offensive star Cullen Bryant, a former defensive back, who rushed for 117 yards and a touchdown.

Rookie running back Doug Kotar ran 69 yards with a screen pass for one Giants' touchdown and ran 13 yards for another as 35,431 fans gathered to in the Yale Bowl—about half as much as last year—to watch the Giants beat the Jets.

Roger Staubach scored from the two-yard line during a sudden death period to climax a come-from-behind victory for Dallas. The Heisman Trophy winner put the Cowboys into a tie when he connected on a 23yard touchdown pass to Ron Howard with 20 seconds left in regulation.

The Bengals also had to go into overtime to capture their third straight victory. Wayne Clark connected with John McDaniel on a 60-yard touchdown pass for the winning margin.

Joe Gilliam brought the Steelers downfield to set up a Roy Gerela field goal which gave Pittsburgh an overtime victory.

Marty Domres threw for one score and passed for another and the Colts also took advantage of two interceptions and two fumbles.

The Packers came back against Chicago as quarterback Jerry Tagge threw touchdown passes to Eric Torkelson and Brent Longwell to surmount a 10-0 second-quarter Chicago lead.

Stockton posts easy 'Hartford' win

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Dave Stockton gave back his $40,000 first prize, had a little chat with the President and then set his sights on Augusta, Ga., and next year's Masters tournament.

Dave Stockton

Stockton was on his way to the clubhouse after his easy victory in the Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open Golf Tournament Sunday when he was summoned back to the press tent to receive telephone congratulations from President Gerald Ford.

"He said he hadn't watched on television," Stockton said. "He'd been out playing golf at Burning Tree. Said he's made five pars."

Stockton and the President— then the Vice President—played together as partners in the proam event preceding the Pleasant Valley Classic in Sutton, Mass., two weeks ago.

"He could be a 10 handicapper real easy," Stockton said.

Stockton, the leader all the way, had a final round 69—two under par—was never threatened and won by a comfortable four strokes.

He accepted the $40,000 first prize—and immediately made arrangements to give it all back. He donated $5,000 to the sponsoring Hartford Jaycees and pledged $1,000 annually for the next 35 years.

"Bob Murphy gave back a portion of his purse when he won here few years ago," Stockton aid. "I think it's a good idea. The old tournaments on the tour, the ones that really make the tour, are sponsored by service groups like the Jaycees.

"I think we ought to do something for them."

Stockton, now a three-time winner this season and enjoying his best year ever, had a threestroke advantage when the day's play started. He expanded it to four with a 10-foot putt for a birdie on the first hole, and led by five most of the way.

When PGA champion Lee Trevino three-putted the fourth hole, Stockton was home safe. It was a fight for second from then on.

Ray Floyd came on with a 66 to take that position—the third time he's been a runner-up this year—with a 272 total. That's 12 under par on the 6,598-yard Wethersfield Country Club course but four back of Stockton's 268 total.

Bob Wynn holed a shot from a sand trap on the 17th hole for a birdie that got him third at 70—203. Trevino, the only man with a chance to catch Stockton, stumbled to a 72 and fourth at 274.

Murphy overcomes doubts in role of Brewer 'saver'

ANAHEIM (AP) — Tom Murphy threw his head back and laughed when somebody asked him how he enjoyed his new career as a relief pitcher for the Milwaukee Brewers.

"Heck," the former Angel starter said smiling, "I'm just happy to be here."

Murphy had doubts about his future when the Brewers grabbed him from the St. Louis Cardinals during the off-season. Anyone sent to the minors after five seasons in the big leagues always has doubts, he admitted.

Milwaukee Manager Del Crandall decided just before the end of spring training to make a relief pitcher out of Murphy. Now both Crandall and Murphy are applauding the decision.

"I wasn't against the idea," Murphy recalled Sunday after registering his 14th save in a 52 triumph over California. "I only wanted to be used in key situations—not to mop up in one-sided games."

Murphy has become the "saver" in the Milwaukee bull pen.

His record is 5-4 but his earned-run average is a splendid 1.54 and his 14 saves—are five more than the entire Angel staff.

"How can I complain hen I keep getting them out," Murphy said. "I'm enjoying this fine."

Murphy's, 2 2-3 innings Sunday saved Jim Slaton's ninth victory. He entered the game with one out and one on in the seventh and immediately induced Rudy Meoli to ground into a double play.

In his last 10 appearances spanning 32 innings, Murphy has compiled a 3-0 record with six saves and has surrendered only two earned runs.

JoAnne Carner cops 4th LPGA crown of 1974

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — JoAnne Carner of Lake Worth, Fla., is playing the best golf of her professional career and she credits a new style to her success on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour in 1974.

JoAnne Carner

"I pretty well know what was wrong with my swing," said Mrs. Carner after capturing the $5,000 winners purse Sunday at the $35,000 St. Paul Ladies Open. "I've learned to smooth it out a little."

"I had to change my attitude," Mrs. Carner continued. "I have to concentrate on slowing down. I used to always be in such a hurry on the course."

Mrs. Carner rebuffed a brief charge by 19-year-old Californian Laura Baugh and finished the 54-hole tournament with a seven-under-par 212.

Miss Baugh, the 1973 LPGA Rookie of the Year who has played in 22 tournaments this year in quest of her first professional victory, faded fast after she moved within three strokes of the lead.

"After JoAnne went out of bounds I knew there was a chance," said Miss Baugh, who finished with a three-under-par 216. "There's still a lot of difernce in the money between second and third and I wasn't going to give away any strokes."

After pulling to within three shots following the 12th hole, Miss Baugh bogeyed 13 and 14.

The victory was the fourth of the year for Mrs. Carner, who has won $68,469 this year and is within $15,000 of becoming the leading single season money winner in the history of the women's tour. Kathy Whitworth won a high of $82,000 in 1973.

Sandra Post, who started the final round five strokes behind Mrs. Carner, slipped to a 75 and finished third with a 218 over the 6,402 yard, par 73 Keller Golf Course.

Pam Higgins of Palm Springs, Calif., finished fourth with a par 219.

Lodderville wins WIR drag race

KAUKAUNA — Paul Lodderville, Neenah, won the top eliminator division feature at Wisconsin International Raceway Saturday by turning 114.06 miles per hour and an elapsed time of 11.17 seconds.

Gary Baehmann, Appleton was the hot rod class winner with 112.78 m.p.h. and 12.42 seconds.

ET winners were Bruce Meshek, Appleton and Charles Ludtke, Menasha.

Trophy winners were Bill Mashke, Waupaca, Cliff Schneiderwent, Appleton; Dave Vallhugen, Appleton, Jack Grawien, Neenah; Loren Laska, Appleton; Mike Kersten, Menasha; Paul Schmidt, Kaukauna; John Konetzke, Menasha, and Steve Oliver, Appleton.

Injured Ramirez wins

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — One injured player won and another lost in the singles of the $50,000 Buckeye tennis Sunday.

Mexican Raul Ramirez, recovering from a thumb injury on his racquet hand, polished off Venezeula's Humphrey Hose 6-3, 6-2.

Meanwhile, an old back injury decked second-seeded Tom Gorman. The Seattle veteran was forced to quit in the midst of his second set with No. 3 Roscoe Tanner.

"I felt a shooting pain through my back. I couldn't bend over. I was surprised I did as well as I did," Gorman said of his injury in the seventh game of the first set.

Tanner, 22-year-old blond from Lookout Mountain, Tenn., took the first set 7-5 and was leading 1-0 in the second when Gorman retired.

"I knew he was hurt. He pulled up short and grabbed his back," said Tanner. "It's too bad."

Ramirez asked for two days off before this 32-man tournament began Tuesday.

"I had a bad wrist. I thought it was tendonitis," explained the tournament's fourth seed. "The wrist hurt so bad last week I couldn't hit a ball hard when I warmed up."

Their semifinal victories match two old West Coast college rivals in the finals tonight at Buckeye Boys Ranch. The winner will pick up $9,000.

M16s deficient, advisers claim

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven years after battlefield complaints a civilian advisory committee has blamed Vietnam era Pentagon officials for ordering production of the M16 rifle "in spite of known deficiencies."

This, in effect, refuted Army and Marine contentions in 1967 that the M16 jammed in combat principally because riflemen were not maintaining their weapons properly.

"Major production decisions were made, particularly in the 1964-1965 era, in spite of known deficiencies in the M16 which had previously been identified in testing," the Army's Materiel Acquisition Review Committee said in a new report.

The report suggested a major cause of difficulties was a "need for a very large quantity in a very short time."

The advisory committee, drawn from industry, the universities, consulting firms and various government agencies named no decision makers in its criticism.

However, then Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told the House defense appropriations subcommittee in January 1966 that after returning from Vietnam somewhat earlier, "I put on order a large quantity of M16s because I thought they would prove effective and that they would be needed."

McNamara indicated he had had to overcome military opposition to the M16 saying, "I personally have been trying to introduce(it) into the military services of this country for three years."

The Army awarded its first contract for 104,000 of the lightweight rifles in 1963.

His 1966 testimony also implied that U.S. generals fell in line during McNamara's Vietnam trip. "All the comanders suddenly decided they wanted larger quantities," McNamara said.

The M16 problems were cured in time but it took changes in design and ammunition powder.

The M16 case was analyzed by the civilian advisory committee as part of its study of the Army's process of developing, testing and producing weapons and other materiel. Its report was made public last week.

The M16 problems were not so much a failure of testing but rather a slowness of the system to correct deficiencies identified by testing, the committee said.

It cited what it called numerous examples of a slow response saying:

"A primer compound which contributed to fouling was deleted three years after identification of the problem. Other ammunition problems continued to exist at least five years after identification."

Looking at the present Army test set up, the committee said that changes recently made by the Army should reduce the chances that many of the problems associated with the M16 rifle development program would be repeated.

Tentative accord at A.O. Smith

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Tentative agreement was reached Sunday in a contract dispute that has shut operations at A.O. Smith Corp., a major manufacturer of frames and other automotive parts, but it appeared production could not resume until Thursday at the earliest.

The strike which began Aug. 9 by 4,800 members of AFL-CIO Local 19806 has threatened production of trucks and 1975 model cars.

Federal mediator Eugene Mlynek said tentative agreement on a new contract came during a bargaining session that lasted from 10 a.m. Saturday to noon Sunday. He said bargainers would meet today to put the agreement in writing.

A Smith spokesman said if the agreement were written today, presented to union membership Tuesday and ratified Wednesday, production could resume Thursday. No ratification vote has been scheduled, however.

Another 1,000 Smith workers are represented by five craft unions and a professional engineers bargaining unit, all of which have honored Local 19806 picket lines. No agreement has been reached between the smaller unions and the firm.

It was uncertain whether Local 19806 members would honor picket lines of the smaller unions if their contracts are not resolved.

A company spokesman said the negotiation committee for 19806 has indicated it will recommend a yes vote to the membership.

"We think the terms of the new contract are generous and reasonable and take into account economic conditions," the spokesman said.

Terms of the tentative agreement were not disclosed, but the union has sought a 15 per cent raise over three years.

Shortage of frames because of the strike has delayed General Motors and Chevrolet truck production at plants in Janesville, Wis., Baltimore, Lakewood, Ga., Flint, Mich., and Oshawa, Ont.

American Motors Corp. has said its plants in Kenosha, Milwaukee and Brampton, Ont., might have to close because of a parts shortage.

An AMC spokesman said Sunday night that "as far as we know, the situation isn't changed."

Population conference opens

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — The largest conference ever to consider ways of coping with the population explosion opens here today with 3,200 delegates from 130 nations.

Also on hand are about 1,500 observers and 1,000 journalists.

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim and Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu were scheduled to address the opening session.

The 10-day World Population Conference — sponsored by the United Nations and the biggest international meeting ever held behind the Iron Curtain — will consider a wide variety of topics related to the population of the world now approaching 4 billion.

No unified global program is expected from the meeting, but officials are hopeful that the discussions will spur action by governments around the world.

The discussions are divided into three main problem areas — population and social and economic development, resources, population and the environment, and population and the family.

Five documents worked out by U.N. experts will form the basis of discussion. They deal with such matters as food, energy sources, medicine, education, disarmament and education.

Much attention will be paid to the wide gap between rich and poor nations in supplies of food, fertilizer and water. But birth control will be a key issue and sharp divisions are expected between such proponents as the United States, India and the Scandinavian countries and such foes as Romania and Brazil.

Pope Paul VI issued a statement Sunday reiterating the Roman Catholic Church's opposition to chemical and mechanical methods of birth control and warning of "serious consequences" if every aspect of the problem is not considered.

The United States delegation includes Caspar W. Weinberger, the secretary of health, education and welfare; Russell H. Peterson, head of the Federal Council on Environmental Quality; Patricia Hunter of the U.N. Commission on the Status of Women; William H. Draper Jr. of the U.N. Population Commission; and Philander P. Claxton Jr., a State Department expert.

New U. S. ambassador to South Korea named

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard L. Sneider, the State Department's senior expert on Japan and Northeast Asia, has been named by President Ford to serve as U.S. ambassador to South Korea.

The 52-year-old New Yorker named to the post Tuesday succeeds ambassador Philip C. Habib.

Poll shows Americans are expecting depression

NEW YORK (AP) — More than two-thirds of the Americans surveyed believe that this nation's economic health will worsen within the next six months, according to a Gallup poll conducted before Richard M. Nixon resigned the presidency.

The Gallup survey, the results of interviews with 1,581 persons 18 years and older Aug. 2 and Aug. 5, also found that 46 per cent expect the United States will eventually succumb to a full-scale depression similar to that of the 1930s.

Meanwhile, a second poll conducted for Time magazine by Yankelovich, Skelly & White in mid-July found that 28 per cent of the public considered themselves to be in deep financial trouble, a 10 per cent increase over an April-May poll.

The Time survey, based on interviews with 1,040 persons, found that 80 per cent felt a deep sense of social disintegration, with the suggested solutions ranging from a return to old values to greater use of central and local government power to force changes.

Time said that the feeling appeared to be based on the opinion that a lack of meaning has encouraged permissiveness, pornography, drug addiction and violence in which assistance is meant to be undeserving.

Both Time and Gallup conducted their results Sunday.

The Gallup poll said that while 46 per cent expect the economy to deteriorate, only 13 per cent believe it will improve, 35 per cent think it will remain the same and four per cent offered no opinion.

However, the disparity between those who predict the country is heading for a major depression and those who don't is much smaller, with 44 per cent feeling the economic trends do not presage a serious economic downturn as opposed to the 46 per cent who think so.

Ten per cent of the sample had no opinion on the matter.

The Gallup poll in an analysis of its sample by political party discovered that Democrats were generally more pessimistic about the future of the economy than Republicans.

Fifty-eight per cent of the Republicans expect the economic situation to worsen within six months as opposed to 32 per cent of the Democrats, while 18 per cent of the Republicans predict an improvement in contrast to 11 per cent of the Democrats.

Twenty per cent of the Republicans think the situation will remain unchanged over the next half a year as compared to 13 per cent of the Democrats. Four per cent from both parties had no opinion on the subject.

Ford may pick vice president on Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will end the 10-day vice presidential guessing game this week. Indications are he may choose someone other than the two front runners in speculation, Nelson A. Rockefeller and George Bush.

Ford said on Sunday that he expects to decide on his vice presidential choice by Tuesday. Congressional confirmation hearings on the nominee won't start before mid-September.

Rockefeller is the only possibility Ford has publicly mentioned.

He did so in a statement Saturday afternoon amid a flurry of speculation surrounding what the White House said was an effort by right-wing extremists to smear the former New York governor and destroy his chances.

President Ford has advised me that former governor Rockefeller has been and remains under consideration for the vice presidential nomination," press secretary Jerald F. terHorst told reporters at the fourth press briefing of the day.

However, two knowledgeable Capitol Hill Republican sources told The Associated Press that chances were growing that neither Rockefeller nor Bush, the Republican National Chairman and top choice of many GOP conservatives, would be picked.

The sources said those in contention include NATO Ambassador Donald Rumsfeld, a Ford intimate who has been working on the transition from the Nixon administration; Gov. Daniel J. Evans of Washington, a moderate without any connection with Watergate and any other Nixon administration controversies; and three Republican Senators, Lowell P. Weicker Jr. of Connecticut and Howard H. Baker Jr. and Bill Brock of Tennessee.

Both Weicker and Baker served on the Senate Watergate committee where the Connecticut senator was the most outspoken Nixon critic.

One of the sources said that background checks on Bush had turned up a potential problem.

Newsweek Magazine on Sunday said Bush has slipped badly because of alleged irregularities in the financing of his 1970 Senate race in Texas.

Opinion

THE Post-Crescent

The real Mr. Ford

Much attention is currently being focused on the personality of President Gerald Ford. His maiden days in office have repeatedly brought out a certain common-man touch that many observers find refreshing and long-absent from our often imperial Presidents.

Less noticed has been the early evidence that the Ford ideology appears to have survived intact in the great leap upward from leader of the minority in the House to President with the declared hope of being leader of all the people.

For 25 years, Ford built a record as a steady conservative in the House. We doubt there will emerge a "new Ford," even though he has declared he is not a Model-T.

If there are surprises, they may turn out to be only the product of misinterpretation of the record.

In an interview last November, during the House hearings on his confirmation as Vice President, Mr. Ford made the comment that yes, he had voted to weaken provisions of civil rights and anti-poverty legislation over the years. But, he explained, he was voting his district. The fact that he also voted to adopt those measures on the final roll call, he suggested, "is more revealing" of how he personally felt.

So, this man from conservative Grand Papids, Mich., now that he has to please a national constituency, may change somewhat — to the extent that he perceives a difference between what Grand Rapids wants and what the average American desires.

A second observation. Ford has declared he will be accessible to the members of Congress and to the press corps, and indeed has already taken steps to demonstrate this. This could change, though we hope it won't. At present, we are still seeing Ford the product of a quarter-century in the House. Of course he can be expected to hold strong feelings of friendship and respect for the body that spawned him. And as any member of the House will admit, attention from the national press corps is a hard-won commodity in that branch of Congress, which finds the competition from the White House and the smaller and flashier Senate tough to meet. Mr. Ford's willingness to chat with reporters every morning as he leaves for work and as he exercises in his pool may be in part a reflection of a former Congressman's thirst to be noticed.

The pressures of the Presidency may forge changes, too, in this aspect of his personality.

But there is a third facet that won't change. It also is the one that has gained the least prominent mention in these first few days of the new Administration. That is the simple fact that Gerald R. Ford, simple, humble, forthright, accessible, is also a seasoned and successful politician. Some say he rose to House minority leader because a group of "young turks" put him up to it to depose the late old-guard leader, Charles Halleck. But Ford did not just sit back and let the others run the show. He won the job because for years he had been winning points among his colleagues.

This third characteristic as professional politician may, in fact, account for Mr. Ford's behavior in the other categories. He is a friendly, humble man of simple tastes and style, loyal to old friends, accessible and congenial and outgoing with colleagues, press and the public. To be all those things is admirable; but to capitalize on them would be the mark of a pro. Mr. Ford may turn out to be a pro with a lot of admirable qualities.

Soft water and heart disease

Recent studies have identified another factor in the incidence of coronary heart disease. Coronary disease rates are twice as high in U. S. cities with the softest water, located mainly on the East Coast and in the Pacific Northwest, than they are in cities with the hardest water.

Dr. Henry Schroeder of the Dartmouth Medical School has come up with a plausible theory to explain these statistics. Checking municipal supplies where the water was softest, his researchers could find no toxic substance to explain the difference. But they did notice that the softest water was the most corrosive.

Dr. Schroeder's conclusion is that soft water absorbs harmful substances such as cadmium, a proven offender in raising blood pressure, through the corrosion of household plumbing, particularly if the water stands for a long time in the piping.

If this theory is born out, communities which in the past thought soft water was a real asset might have to consider adding lime to their water supplies.

Or simply running the cold water for a few minutes before taking that first drink in the morning might mean a substantial reduction in the risk of coronary disease.

End of press freedom in Peru

It was less than three years ago that there was a bitter dispute in Peru over whether or not the government ought to have more control over the nation's radio and television. Things moved inexorably along as they are wont to do in a military dictatorship. There was little theater for dissent when the government nationalized all independent newspapers a couple of weeks ago. The stages had all been occupied.

The Freedom of the Press and Information Committee of the Inter-American Press Association drew up a resolution which was recently approved by the executive committee. It calls for all members of the organization "as well as the newspapers and free journalists of the world, to intensify the efforts already begun and to maintain thus the climate of repudiation provoked by the totalitarian conduct of the Peruvian regime." But resolutions alone do not bring liberty.

Peruvian defenders of ailing President Juan Velasco Alvarado's government and its increasingly tough line toward civil liberties claim that the action was just part of a modernization process. Dr. Oscar Faura, head of the press department of the Peruvian Foreign Ministry, insisted that "40 families" who used to appoint presidents in Peru and control the country had dominated the newspapers. Expropriating the papers was just a social measure, part of "the transformation of the antiquated structure of our nation," he told a press conference.

There is enough truth in such claims in Latin America to warrant some backing for revolutionary regimes. But those purporting to represent the people and which refuse to let the people have anything to say — or hear or read — are just more of the same.

John Wyngaard

Watergate scandal recalls earlier times

MADISON — Readers occasionally suggest that this report has shown an excessive concern with the need of rewriting the state election campaign expenditure law to provide reasonable assurance that the electorate will have the opportunity to understand the involvement of special interests in politics and elections.

The befouling of the political process so disturbingly exemplified by Watergate and the first expulsion of a president from the White House in the history of the republic surely provide all the proof that ought to be required about the desire of prudent men for a strong code of laws to govern politics, politicians and elections.

But if a personal testament is in order, there are many other reasons in provincial experience to persuade a student of public affairs that man has not yet attained perfection and that a prudent society will so order its laws that punishment for dishonest conduct will deter where private perceptions of moral conduct are inadequate.

What follows is written with the assurance of this reporter that the level of morality and the standards of conduct of public men and women in Wisconsin is as worthy as in any comparable jurisdiction in America. Notwithstanding, human nature is fallible, and as one of my favorite college tutors used to remark, the politician is a slice of human life.

I can remember the street corner where as a cub reporter long ago I saw a prominent citizen hand to a candidate for an important and sensitively powerful public office what was apparently a sizeable sum in paper currency, judging from the haste with which he pocketed it. In a retrospective judgment, perhaps the green lad should have called the district attorney. He did not. But he remembers and he has wondered scores of times why he did not.

In later years, before earlier revisions of the so-called Corrupt Practices Act, legislative gossip contained interminable references to the relations of professional lobbyists and key lawmakers, not so much around Madison or the Capitol, as during the campaign seasons when according to a score of confidential accounts from a variety of sources, campaign funding understandings were reached that were confirmed in roll call votes in Madison months later.

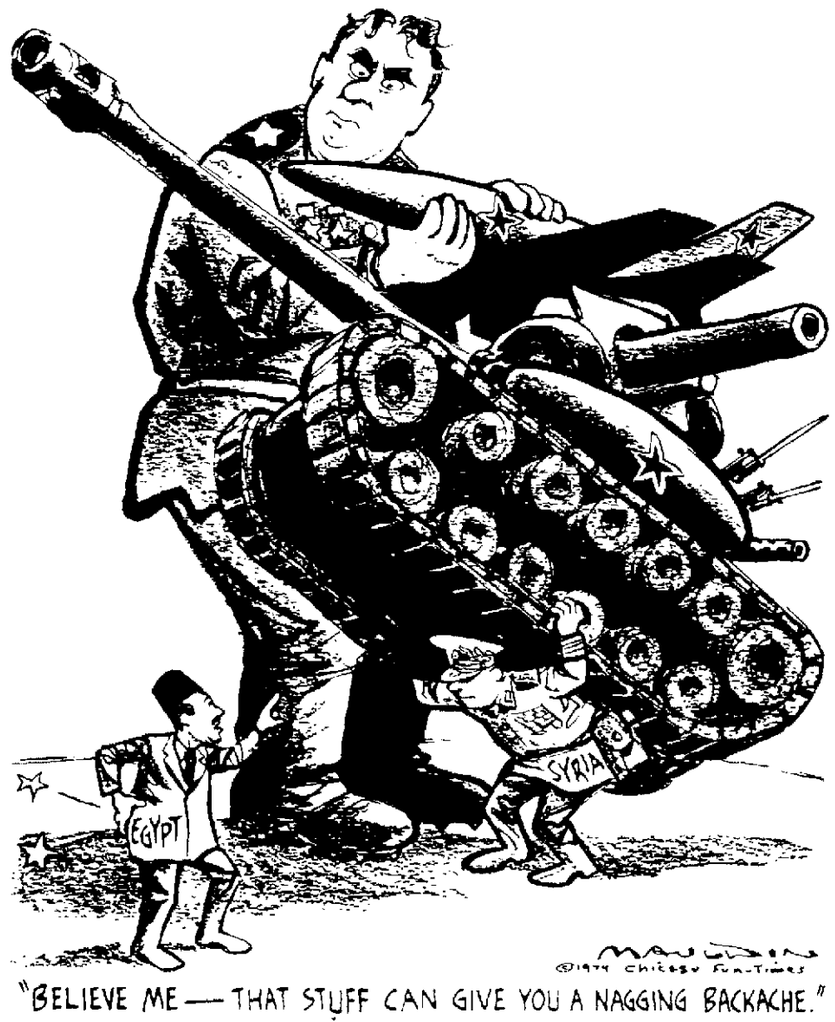

Those who can recall when the state rocked in controversy about the abrupt, and difficult to believe, decision to outlaw slot machines will remember also the consternation that prevailed in the upper Wisconsin zones where illegal gambling had prospered in defiance of law for decades.

So shocked was the resort industry that there was widespread speculation in the upper Wisconsin counties about the retribution that would be visited upon the legislators and patriarchal Gov. Walter S. Goodland, who persuaded them to push the affirmative roll call buttons in spite of their worries.

The next year a political hanger-on who shall be nameless here, but who can be identified by anyone who is curious enough to examine the election records, resolved to run for a nomination for governor with a pledge to restore the gambling machines to the stricken resort belt.

That he was rewarded with contributions from the naive, and sometimes desperate, resort proprietors was widely known at the time. He made a poor run. But two years later he ran again, and virtually the entire political community became aware that he didn't care about votes. He had found an easy way to raise substantial sums of money.

Wisconsin now has a law that will expose such machinations.

Our inflation is problem of supply

The special character of the current inflation and the difficult decisions it imposes on President Ford are underscored by the latest crop reports from the Midwest. For grain production is down in a way that threatens another inflationary surge in this country.

But Mr. Ford cannot check the rising prices by restricting demand as prescribed by the oldtime religion. He has to take international action on the supply front, including perhaps some painful restrictions on American food exports.

At the root of the problem is a tight food situation which has prevailed the world over for the past few years. It results from many different and complex developments.

World population has been growing at a rate of about 2 per cent annually and at a far faster pace in some of the underdeveloped lands. Steadily rising expectations in the developed world have led to larger food consumption — notably in Europe and Japan.

No more surpluses

Soviet leaders have been less willing to have their own people tighten their belts when Russian food production goes down. The United States, which has been the supplier of last resort, ended in the decade of the 1960s the stimulative policies which produced enormous food surpluses in the previous decade.

The effect of all these developments was visible in 1972 and 1973. Though the United States enjoyed bumper crops, droughts in the Soviet Union and the Indian subcontinent put a strain on supplies. World prices soared when the Russians went into the international market to replenish their stocks in the grain deal of 1972. For a brief time a year ago, in an emergency action taken when sales abroad outran domestic supplies, the United States cut off exports of soybeans to all foreign countries, including such traditional and dependent buyers as Japan.

As this year's growing season began, worldwide grain reserves were at minimal levels. Still the outlook was not all that bad. The Department of Agriculture estimated a record world crop of 1,290 million tons of wheat, rice and feed grains as against last year's crop of 1,274 million tons.

But in the United States weather conditions were adverse. On Monday the Department of Agriculture released new estimates made in the wake of a month-long drought. The new estimates showed that production of corn, soybeans and wheat were all down.

Thanks to the American drop, this year's world production of wheat, rice and feed grains will be 1,240 million tons. That is 34 million tons less than last year — a reduction of about 3 per cent in total availability as against a growth of about 2 per cent in population.

The effect was felt immediately. In American markets grain futures were bid up by the maximum amount. In Europe, where there are no limits, there was a 20 to 25 per cent increase in grain futures.

Commercial buyers in Europe and other developed countries are now likely to enter the American grain market with a vengeance. That would drive up the price here at home. One Washington estimate says that food prices alone will go up by 10 per cent in the last half of this year. Moreover, commercial sales abroad would leave this country bare when it comes to aiding the truly poor countries in southern Asia.

Old solutions useless

The number of things President Ford can do to muffle the inflationary impact of the crop shortfall is limited. Budget cuts make no dent; neither do crop restrictions. In effect, the oldtime religion is useless.

Probably the most equitable arrangement would be an an agreement whereby traditional foreign customers would refrain from major purchases against an understanding that their most basic needs would be met. That would leave a goodly amount available for domestic consumption at stable prices and a margin left for distribution to the neediest countries.

But it may be too late for that. Well known internationalists at the State Department, the Federal Reserve Board and in the Congresa are known to be c for applying unilateral export controls on grain even though they would upset orderly trade and perhaps bring retaliation from this country's best allies and most important customers.

In any case, there are no good choices. So that, despite the extraordinarily fine atmospherics of his first days in office, Mr. mord is a long way from beginning to cope with the substantive problems which confront his presidency.

How does one find his niche in life?

Listening to a small group of college students talk about their "future" the other evening, I realized with a pang that it is too easy, terribly easy, for adults to forget what it feels like to be just emerging from the shell of adolescence.

I had nearly forgotten that there seems at first no place for us in the world. There are no edges to grasp, society seems self-sufficient without us, we are not needed, we have nothing special to offer which the world is clamoring to buy.

It seems impossible, at that age, that we shall ever find a niche for ourselves, ever make a furrow, ever form a circle, ever break into the busy and purposeful world of grownup activity.

But, strangely and surprisingly enough, life does fall into place for the great majority. Somehow, nearly everyone finds a little piece missing in the huge jigsaw of society, and fits himself into the pattern. It may not be a satisfactory hole, it is rarely a final one, but at least it gives us a foothold on reality. We finally "belong," in however tenuous or trivial a way.

These days, much of the travail of youth springs from two causes, neither of which is easy to remedy. The first is the shadow of war, the second is the drive toward earlier and earlier specialization.

Both of these prevent young people from achieving a sense of belonging as early as they should, as early as they used to. And, thus, they become further alienated and embittered and cynical toward adult society.

The continued threat of war means that plans must be postponed for years, and youth lives in a shadowland of indecision which is mentally paralyzin and morally shattering.

The growth of specialization means that the "general student" is desperately afraid that his aptitudes are not marketable in a social order which has made the Technician more important than the Human Being.

These are overwhelming problems to young people, these problems have existed before, but not with such immediacy or intensity in the ruthless competition to "make it" or to drop out. Unless we understand and sympathize, not only are we impotent to communicate with them, but we run the more serious risk of judging them too harshly for failing to fit into the menacing jigsaw which we have bequeathed them.

Thoreau's prophetic man has been multiplied a millionfold these days, and many of these youngsters hear a different drummer than we ever stepped to. Their "measure" is neither martial nor mechanistic, and the music that binds them speaks of a far different world than we have made, or that we found when we began the same dark journey.

Open season declared on chickens

The Crescent, Aug. 22, 1874.

The infernal hens and chickens are out again and visiting premises generally on Prospect Street. And now it seems the Common Council declares that we can't shoot within the limits of the Corporation.

All jolly fisherman are therefore invited and notified that a good place to fish for spring chickens is on the Editor's "Plantation," on Prospect Street, also that a grain of corn makes the best bait. They are welcome to all the chickens they can catch.

If that plan won't leave us a few grapes this year, then we shall purchase a harpoon and start on a whaling voyage!

Flushed by success

HULL, England (AP) — Dennis Bateson, 23, who formerly flushed 2,000 toilets a day as tester at a bathroom equipment factory here, has been promoted to the position of junior foreman.

Bateson was known as Britain's top chain puller and had held his previous post for two years. Now the company reports having trouble finding a new man for the flushing job.

Wisconsin fortunate to have laws on morals

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

Several years ago, when Governor Knowles was in office, the slogan "we like it here" was coined for Wisconsinites.

One reason we liked it here was because we had laws to protect our morality. Then an easterner came into our state, broke our laws that protected us all against learning about birth control, and our socialistic courts decided our laws against dissemination of birth control information were invalid.

That was the first crack in our protective armor against sexual sin and immorality. Even the word "dissemination" is evil and immoral because it derives from "dist seminare" (to sow), and that in turn is derived from the unmentionable word "semen." The dictionary defines it as "to spread abroad," which speaks for itself, as is evidenced by the fact that ever since that court decision, Wisconsin girls have been getting pregnant.

I wonder why we don't have a law to prevent your publishing editorials that mention the sinful practice of birth control in a favorable light. It would be a good law to pass in the next legislative session so everyone would be prohibited from even mentioning those immoral words, much less print them. Such legislation would do much to improve our morality.

You dare to write about the increase in venereal disease and teen-age pregnancy hazards. With adequate laws these wouldn't exist. But in any case, why should anyone be concerned when some people, by their own immoral conduct, get themselves in trouble.

And you write of giving out condoms at cost to prevent pregnancies and VD. Well, here in Wisconsin we still aren't about to have that going on. Luckily, we have laws that prevent such immoral acts. In our great progressive state, our laws prohibit anyone under eighteen from purchasing such indecent articles. And still better, our laws prevent all unmarried people, regardless of age, from purchasing those horrible things. Fortunately our laws provide good stiff fines and imprisonment of those who tempt us with such satinistic unmentionables. We are indeed lucky to live in probably the only state of our country that has laws to afford us this protection.

Several years ago a Madison druggist had a customer who asked to purchase a dozen of those terrible things. The customer showed his ID card, proving he was 21 years old. But the druggist failed to ask the customer if he was married. The customer was not married, and after he bought the dozen condoms he reported the druggist to the authorities. The druggist was let off too easy. He was only fined $500, but was not imprisoned.

What we need is a change in these laws so that married people will also be prohibited from making such purchases. That would remove all question of discrimination, even make the law constitutional, and further protect our morals.

As to the miseries of unwanted children, their punishment is God's will for the sins of their parents, and no one should attempt to interfere with the will of the Almighty.

Prefers Peter Frampton to Santana's music

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

You have already printed a review of the Santana concert in Green Bay from an authority on music and writing, so I thought you'd like to hear the viewpoint of an average teenage music lover.

First of all, not being an authority on music and its origins, I couldn't tell you that Santana's music was a combination of Latin, African, Oriental, rock and soul or even which beat came from what country. What I hear is all I know. I respect Santana for being good at what they do, but as far as being able to enjoy it, I couldn't quite hack it. Every song sounded so much the same, and they often lasted for ten minutes and longer, making it difficult listening.

Another factor involved with the discomfort was that the members, individually or as a whole, did not relate to the audience enough, creating the feeling of being left out or even watching TV. This has a lot to do with the effect of the music on the listener.

Backup band Peter Frampton made much more of an impression on me. His charm and youthfulness, along with his good rock and roll, gave me and many others something to relate to. The high point of his measly fifty minutes on stage was the touching "Lines On My Face," a heart rending song that was felt by every kind of music lover there, because of the simple beauty of the words and the genuine feeling he sang them with.

The total visual effect was much more impressive than of Santana; also there was much more action and movement on stage. Santana looked as though they were working their buns off, which isn't too pleasant to look at. And it's harder to get into. Peter was having a great time up there, prancing around. Made you wanna move.

All in all, I guess Peter's time on stage went too fast, and as for Santana. Well, to be honest, I couldn't wait till it was over.

Sacrifices awaited from White House

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

President Ford's message to the American people to sacrifice and hold down spending toward curbing the increasingly inflationary spiral of the economy is not without merit. However, to demonstrate the realistic attitude of the middle and lower working class, the real mainstream of American life, they want meaningful evidence of sacrifice by the leadership of America, such as the White House sending out to McDonalds for hamburgers, fries and cokes to take the place of the thousands of dollars which are traditionally wasted on the misdirected wining and dining of foreign dignitaries. I'm enraged at the mad spending of my tax dollar. Until such time that I see evidence of comparable sacrifice by the leadership of America, I don't want to hear that line.

Orderly change of government

One of Gerald Ford's first acts as President was to ask Paul Delisle to stay on as maitre d' of the Sans Souci Restaurant. As most people know, all the important government decisions are made at lunch time at the Sans Souci, and the President felt it was essential that, in order to have an orderly transition of government, no personnel changes should take place at the restaurant.

A White House aide told me, "We feel that Paul will serve us with the same loyalty that he served previous administrations. The whole world is watching what we do, and I can't think of a better way of instilling confidence than to have Paul remain in this key post in government."

Many ambassadors who eat at the Sans Souci expressed delight at the news that the President asked Paul to stay on. "We don't know President Ford," one told me, "but we do know Paul and we can deal with him. I have already cabled my government that Mr. Delisle will keep his maitre d' post, and despite the changeover in government, our country can still be assured of a table."

Lawyers and high officials of the media were also pleased that Paul would stay on. One leading pundit said, "In this grave hour of crisis the country needs continuity.

"By asking Paul to keep his position Mr. Ford is saying, 'No matter what happens, America will survive.'"

As soon as the announcement was made, I went over to see Paul to congratulate him on the appointment.

He read a statement. "I am proud and humble that the White House would ask me to remain in office. I promise to see that nothing but the prices will change at the Sans Souci. Despite the anguish of the past year and the shock that everyone has undergone, we must never forget government officials still have to eat. We have to forget the past and look to the future. The Sans Souci stands ready to face the challenge. I will now take questions."

"Paul, it seems to me your major problem is going to be to take care of President Ford's aides who work at the White House. How will you be able to do this?"

"It will be hard at first because I won't know who they are. Unless they make the reservation in the name of the White House, I may make a mistake and turn them away, but as time goes on, I will know where the power is and adjust my reservation list accordingly."

"But can you handle all this new business?"

"I believe I can. Many of the former Nixon aides are no longer in Washington, for one reason or another, so their tables will be filled by the new regime."

"Will you still accept reservations from former Nixon people who have not been sent away?"

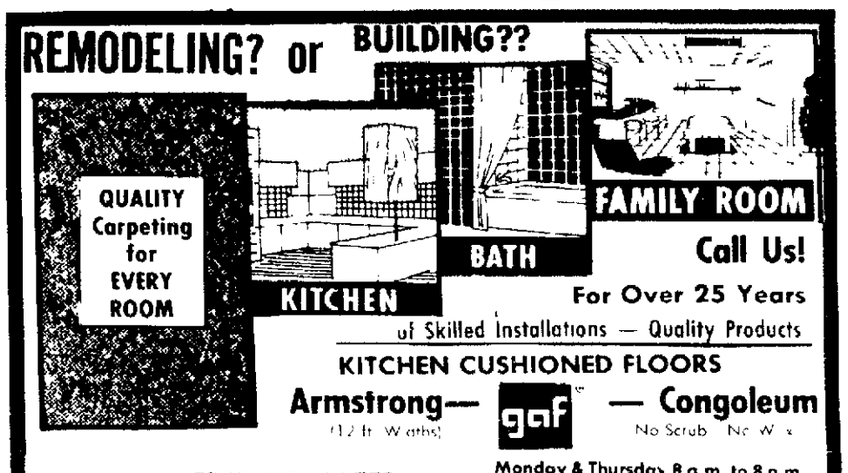

Of course. They may have to wait until the present White House staff is fed, but as long as I am maitre d' anyone who worked in the White House and can still afford it will be welcome. I still have customers from the Kennedy and Johnson administrations and, although they no longer have decision-making powers, they get the same food as everybody else.

"One last question. Some of the plotting of Watergate and the coverup took place at the Sans Souci. Did the FBI ever question you about what you knew?"

"Yes, but I couldn't give them much help. Every time they asked me about someone I always replied, 'That wasn't my table.'"

A real summer sizzler

After a month of subnormal temperatures and relatively low humidity levels across most of the state, that old August stickiness is starting to seep into Dairyland once again The Fox Valley can expect Tuesday to be partly cloudy, hot and humid with highs in the low to mid 90s

Low temperatures tonight are expected to be in the low to mid 60s being replaced Tuesday with partly cloudy conditions and high humidity Scattered showers will move into the state, but should avoid the Fox Valley area, according to the U S Weather Service at Green Bay Winds will be from the southwest Tuesday at 12 20 miles per hour

The extended forecast calls for mostly fair skies Wednesday and Thursday with a chance of showers and thunderstorms in the northern counties Friday Temperatures are expected to drop at midweek with afternoon readings holding in the upper 70s and low 80s and nightly lows dropping into the 50s and low 60s

For the 24-hour period ending at 10 a m today, the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co had recorded a high of 83 and a low of 62 in Appleton The barometer was 30 12 and steady, relative humidity was 85 per cent and the dew point was at 63 degrees The winds have been calm over the period and no precipitation had been recorded

High temperatures Sunday ranged from 86 at La Crosse to 70 at Land O Lakes while overnight lows varied from 46 at Eagle River to 65 at Pewaukee

Sunset today at 7 53 p m Sunrise tomorrow at 6 02 a m Moonset tonight at 8 32 p m First Quarter on Aug 24

Will Wisconsin Michigan Power Company Provide Service as Usual During the Strike?

Yes, Management Personnel Are Working to Maintain All Essential Electric and Gas Services

You probably already know about the Wisconsin Michigan Power Company strike, so you might be wondering how it will affect your electric or gas service.

A total of 667 employes who are members of Local 2150 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (I.B.E.W.) struck Wisconsin Michigan Power Company at midnight Thursday, August 15. They normally work as plant operators, linemen, electricians, power dispatchers, meter readers, appliance repairmen, maintenance men, gas servicemen, and clerical workers. Under normal circumstances they are employed at Appleton, Neenah, Bear Creek, Bonduel, Gillett, Hilbert, Hortonville, Pulaski, Seymour, Weyauwega, the Point Beach nuclear plant near Two Rivers and in communities throughout northern Wisconsin and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

During the strike, management personnel in these jobs will perform the necessary functions to keep the strike from interfering with your electric or gas service. However, unusual weather conditions or other circumstances beyond our control may cause service interruptions. If that happens, here are some things you could do to help restore your service as quickly as possible.

- Wait a few moments because service is sometimes restored automatically, depending upon the cause of the interruption.
- Look outside. Are wires or power poles down? Are trees or branches hanging over wires? Check to see if your neighbors have service. If they do and you do not, check your main service box for a blown fuse or a circuit breaker that might have tripped to the "off" position.
- If your power remains off, do not try to correct the problem yourself. Call us. (Wisconsin customers outside the Appleton may use the toll free number 1-800-432-3311). When you call, give your name, street address and phone number. If you live in a rural area we need exact directions on how to get to your home. Be sure to tell us if you see wires or poles down and where they are located.
- Once you have notified us, you've done your part. It's not necessary to call again. The rest is up to us. We are operating short-handed, so it might take longer than normal to restore service. But please be patient. And be assured we'll be working hard to restore service to everyone as quickly as possible.

During the strike we will need to suspend many of the special services usually available. If you are one of the customers who recently made a request for service or special work, please be understanding. Until things get back to normal, we will be directing all our efforts and manpower toward maintaining service.

We have more than 87,000 electric customers in east-central and northern Wisconsin and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan in addition fo 22,000 natural gas customers in the Appleton-Neenah-Menasha area. They depend upon WMPCO for reliable service. We'll work hard to provide it while we continue intensive efforts to resolve issues with Local 2150, I.B.E.W.

Will Ford deroyalize the White House guard?

WASHINGTON—How far President Ford really intends to deroyalize the presidency depends on his reaction to a private proposal to slash the White House palace guard, both in its swollen numbers and special privileges.

The proposal from a former Nixon aide, plus several others, is now under scrutiny by the Ford transition staff, headed by Ambassador Donald Rumsfeld. Robert Hartmann, Mr. Ford's influential longtime aide and new counselor, has recommended drastic staff reductions. Mr. Ford tends to agree.

Nevertheless, skepticism among Ford partisans persists whether this President will be any more resolute than others in draconian reduction of his own staff.

What makes this so important to Mr. Ford is the pervasive contribution of the royalized presidency to Watergate and the disgrace of Richard M. Nixon. Grand Rapids Ford is plainshoe Midwestern, but even his presidency will retain imperial trappings if he keeps a huge White House staff isolated from the citizenry and inevitably made arrogant by the perquisites of office.

The former Nixon aide making the proposals believes that in normal times any President will always be exposed to the public. It is, then, only the staff that can truly be isolated from the real world. When the staff is elephantine and dominates the entire federal bureaucracy as in the Nixon years, the effect can be deadly.

Thus, the former aide's proposal calls for a drastic reduction in the presidential staff, 540 today compared with 250 when Mr. Nixon took office. Although reduction is by far the most important element in the plan, he proposes these changes for those who remain:

1. Limit the normal working day to 12 hours, five days a week. That would end the 7 a.m.-10 p.m. work day, six days and often seven days a week, which were standard during the Nixon administration. Anybody working less was stigmatized as a shirker. Hence, the Nixon aide's horizon was bounded by the four walls of his White House office.

Get aides out of Washington

2. Require every aide to get out of Washington and visit the U.S.A.—whether Hagerstown, Md., or Los Angeles—at least once every six months. Failure to comply would require a written explanation.

3. Sharply reduce the physical size of the White House mess (presently seating 32), status symbol of presidential aides where prestige compensates for bland cuisine—perhaps turning it into a buffet-style lunch counter. That would encourage some aides, who never leave the White House, to eat outside several times a week, perhaps even on Capital Hill with the peoples' representatives.

4. Close down the White House barber shop. "If these guys can't get off their butts once a month to go get their haircut like everybody else in the world, it's too damn bad," says the former aide.

5. Strictly limit the use of White House limousines to senior aides—perhaps no more than ten—compelling the President's men to join their fellow Americans behind the wheel fighting rush-hour traffic.

The deroyalizing spirit is congenial to at least one member of Mr. Ford's four-man transition team, who is making a point of dialing his own calls from the White House. "It is a humbling experience that I recommend to the President's staff," he told us.

Moreover, a reduced staff at the Ford White House fits both the new President's idea of restoring policy and operations to cabinet-level departments and deemphasizing his own staff. It also comports with his own firm ideas of a deroyalized presidency.

Kept big staff as V.P.

But skepticism stems not only from precedents of past Presidents but Mr. Ford's own record. When he succeeded Spiro T. Agnew as Vice President, he kept the staff at a swollen 60.

There is, furthermore, something about the White House atmosphere that encourages royalism. Bob Hartmann, a tough old ex-newspaperman without a visible royalist bone in his body, held a very low opinion of the title of "counselor," a pretentious and faintly Europeanized cabinet rank created by President Nixon. Yet, when Mr. Ford quickly named former Rep. John Marsh of Virginia his first cabinet-level counselor, insiders say that Hartmann would accept no less for himself and now boasts the title "Counselor Hartmann."

That was merely an early skirmish, ending in a minor victory for royalism. The more meaningful test is President Ford's reaction to this laudable and overdue proposal to cut the palace guard down to size.

Man with dying wife shoots son, daughter

LITTLE SILVER, N.J. (AP) — A stockbroker whose wife is dying of cancer shot and killed his 10-year-old son Friday morning and critically wounded his 13-year-old daughter, police said.

Robert F. Mottershead, 44, was charged with murder and attempted murder.

Police said they arrived at the scene shortly after Mottershead's wife, Eugenia, took a rifle and an old .38-caliber revolver from her husband as he stood, "apparently in a stupor," in the den where the children were shot.

The boy, Michael Mottershead, was on the floor in a sleeping bag and the girl, Holly Mottershead, was on a sofa bed.

Holly was in critical condition at Riverview Hospital in Red Bank, N.J., Friday afternoon, following surgery for removal of a bullet from her head.

Police said the children were sleeping in the den because their room was occupied by their grandmother, who was caring for Mottershead's ailing wife.

They said five shots were fired and that each child was shot in the back of the head.

After taking the guns from her husband, Mrs. Mottershead ran from the $50,000 house and hid the weapons in a neighbor's car while another daughter, Betsy, 17, summoned police, authorities said. Mottershead surrendered without resistance.

"He said he wanted to take their lives, that they would go to Heaven," Police Chief John Foster said. "His wife has cancer, and that may have triggered the whole thing."

Mrs. Mottershead and the children's grandmother were hospitalized for shock.

Mottershead, a native of Bayonne who lived here for 14 years, works for the Wall Street firm of Blyth, Dillon & Eastman.

"The strain of his personal problems probably brought this on," a spokesman for the firm said, referring to Mrs. Mottershead's illness.

The spokesman described Mottershead as a "very quiet, mild-mannered person." He said he earned about $25,000 per year plus commissions and had been with the firm for about a year.

"His wife has been dying for some time," the spokesman said. "We sent him home from work early Tuesday and told him to take the rest of the week off because we understood the end was near for his wife. He was tremendously devoted to her."

Union official raps Steiger in truck dispute

Ray Majerus, director, Region 10 United Auto Workers UAW, Milwaukee, has criticized U.S. Rep. William Steiger, R-Oshkosh, for his opposition to Rep. Les Aspin's charge that the Air Force is apparently siding with management to break the union at the Oshkosh Truck Corp.

Steiger is reported to have stated that by making the issue public, Aspin "has done disservice to the cause he professes to uphold."

In a letter to Steiger, Majerus said that since Aspin's investigation began at the request of Local 578 of the UAW, the Air Force has initiated its own inquiry about the effects of the strike.

Aspin's investigation has uncovered a series of questionable payments by the Air Force to Oshkosh Truck since the strike began June 1, Majerus stated. He also pointed out that Aspin has been working with senior Air Force officials to look into the Air Force's contract at Oshkosh Truck in his capacity as a member of the House Armed Services Committee.

The letter reminded Steiger that when he met with the strike committee, he told them that there was nothing he could do about the dispute.

"The UAW believes that only by making the public aware of the Air Force's taking sides in a labor management dispute will this sort of thing be stopped, not only in this case, but in other cases as well," Majerus said.

Chair to be sold

An antique, hand-carved bishop's chair will be auctioned off during the Sacred Heart Catholic Church picnic this weekend. Examining the chair are, from left, Arthur Schomisch, auctioneer; Genevieve Hollenback, immediate past chairman, and Ron Van Asten, this year's picnic chairman. The auction will be at 1 p.m. Saturday. (Post-Crescent photo)

Carved bishop's chair to be highlight of church auction

An antique bishop's chair, thought to have been carved around the turn of the century, will be the highlight of the auction during the Sacred Heart Catholic Church picnic Friday through Sunday.

The picnic hours are from 5 to 11 p.m. Friday, with a bish boil beginning at 5 p.m. and a disc jockey teen dance at 8 p.m. The auction will be at 1 p.m. Saturday, and live music will be provided by the Lo La Combo, beginning at 7 p.m.

Sunday's events include a chicken dinner beginning at 11 a.m.; country music by Bonnie Lou and the Ramblers, from 1 to 6 p.m.; a talent show at 6 p.m. and live music by the Music Masters from 7 to 11 p.m. There will also be rides on the London bus from 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday and games, pizza, beer tent, craft corner and lunch stand all three days.

The bishop's chair was carved by William Scheer, a member of the St. Joseph Parish.

Substitutes needed

STOCKBRIDGE — Substitute teachers for all grades and subjects are needed at the public schools.

Teachers are asked to contact the school during office hours to be placed on the substitute list.

Albert will probe hiring accusations

House Speaker Carl Albert says he plans to look into a newspaper report that 19 U.S. representatives, including a Fox Valley congressman, and one senator used racial discrimination in hiring staff members.

"I don't know what I'll do about it. I'll check into it," said Albert, D-Okla., after the copyright story appeared Sunday in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. The congressmen promptly denied the charge.

The Texas newspaper said the 20 congressmen specified "whites only" or "no minorities" when requesting help from the Office of Placement and Office Management. The office is a clearinghouse for office workers looking for government jobs.

U.S. Rep. Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, among the 19 congressmen cited, issued a denial Saturday stating: "I don't have any policy against hiring minorities."

The newspaper quoted Stephanie Solari, legislative assistant to Froehlich, as acknowledging her office wanted no minorities so as not to offend the sensibilities of the present staff workers.

The newspaper said the individual employe preferences were written on a "job order" form filed with the office by the legislators.

The Star-Telegram, which obtained photostats of some of the requests for help, said some of the congressmen not only rejected minority applicants, but specified the sex, dress, and appearance of prospective employes.

At least half of the order forms obtained by the Star-Telegram specified young people were preferred. Most called for females. Two forms specified single females.

Rep. Vernon Thomson, R-Richland Center, reportedly asked for a "white Republican" clerk typist. Thomson branded the allegations as "ridiculous, absolutely ridiculous."

When he was asked if he had any minorities on his staff, Thomson replied, "Well, we've got Swedes and Norwegians and Irish."

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Fruit pits poisonous, hardly an aphrodisiac

Dear Dr Thosteson I hope you can help me This young husband of mine has a habit of cracking the stones of plums and cherries and eating the seed kernels He says 'That is the best from the fruit because it makes the tree grow '

I always get mad and tell him it is no good His answer then, Honey, it only stimulates sex and you don't mind that " What is right? — S W

Dear Dr Thosteson I was told by a reliable source that apple seeds contain a poisonous substance and should not be eaten Since I eat an unusual amount of apples seeds included (I love their nutty flavor), I need to know if there is a shred of truth in this — A L

There's at least a "shred of truth" in the warning about apple seeds The nutty, almond like flavor is there because the inside of the seed contains hydrocyanic acid, better known as prussic acid

Have you ever read any of the old whodunits in which the detective sniffs at the dead lips of the victims, gets a bitter almond scent, and says sagely that the victim was poisoned with prussic acid?

I trust you never have gotten enough of it to do you any real harm, but prussic acid is poisonous and deadly in rather small amounts (But don't worry if you accidentally swallow an apple seed or two, the prussic acid is inside, and stays there if the pit or seed covering is not broken)

The same acid is inside cherry and plum pits, and in peach pits, and it is safer not to eat them

As to the pits being sex stimulants, your hubby is handing out a line, even though he may believe it himself

I hope he doesn't crack a tooth on those pits

Dear Dr Thosteson What is a vascular lesion of the eye? Would an injury cause it? — Mrs G S

The term has too many possible meanings to give a simple answer — actually it means something wrong with a blood vessel in the eye

A common one is the rupture of a small blood vessel in the eye, causing a sudden red blotch This looks pretty bad but is harmless (It may or may not be caused by injury) The bleeding is painless and the blood is absorbed in a few days Other vascular lesions may be inside the eye, and caused by diabetes, high blood pressure or arterial hardening

Dear Dr Thosteson I have periodic outbreaks of "cold sores" or "fever blisters" around my mouth Are there any cures? I have heard that periodic smallpox vaccination will prevent outbreaks — A R

I don't know of any surefire preventive or cure It is true that sometimes a series of smallpox vaccinations will put an end to the trouble for a limited time This may be a matter of months, and then have to be repeated Yet for other sufferers, the vaccination doesn't seem to do any good

Just why the vaccinations work for some is not known, hence we don't know why it won't work for others All I can say is it's worth trying if you are having a lot of trouble

Dear Dr Thosteson I have had two children by cesarean and wonder if near age 40 it would be too risky to have another I am in good health — Mrs D

I don't see any abnormal risk unless there are other factors that you haven't mentioned

---

Trombled with gout? To learn of new treatment for this painful disease, write to Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent for a copy of his booklet, "Gout — the Modern Way to Stop It " Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents Allow four to six weeks for delivery

Only soap opera on radio today

By DOLORES BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Fingerpopping, toe tapping rock and rhythm and blues music fades out daily on radio stations in 27 cities for a 15-minute visit with radio's first black soap opera family

"It is absolutely a carbon copy of the traditional soap opera," said the executive producer of "Sounds of the City," Byron Lewis "But it is the only dramatic program on black radio and the only soap opera on any radio"

Lewis, who is also president of Uniworld Group, Inc., the company which produces the show, estimates that the show has over four million listeners, but he declined to say just how much of a financial success it is for Uniworld and the program's sponsor, The Quaker Oats Co The show debuted April 29

"Sounds of the City" is introduced by a sonorous male voice to the dirge-like strains of organ music He tells of the day-to day upsets in the Taylor house

"They love, fight and play and have problems, just like any other black family"

The Taylors do have their woes Calvin Taylor is a policeman whose son, Robert Lee, 17, allegedly is involved in the shooting death of another policeman and a young boy

Dan Taylor, Calvin's father, has undergone an eye operation and faces possible blindness His wife, Eula, is a domestic

Calvin s 16 year old unmarried daughter, Esther, is an honor student who has an ill fated love affair with an older man His other daughter, Norma, is married to Jimmy Gates, who is caught up in the music and art drug scene

The central character is Calvin's wife Winona fast approaching middle age and its attendant conflicts

"We made studies in four cities," said Lewis in describing audience reaction They liked the show but thought it too realistic They wanted it to have more humor and wanted black people to win sometimes"

Calls to station WWRL which broadcasts the show in New York City, are 99 to 1 complimentary, according to the station s program director, Enoch Gregory

They re quite caught up in the story he said of the callers who often ask for pictures of members of the cast

Lewis said he spent $50,000 promoting the show before Quaker picked up the sponsorship

He said he had to convince station managers and owners that the soap opera format was a good selling device in the $51 billion a year black consumer market

"We're a black company pioneering Black stations had no experience with a black dramatic show," he said in a recent interview "Many took a wait and see attitude It took an awfully long time and a lot of selling

"Major companies want to reach the black consumer and have never had a vehicle with which to do it We conceived of 'Sounds of the City' as a female oriented family program because the black woman does the shopping and makes buying decisions"

Lewis began in the communications business as a $60 a-week editorial production assistant at a small trade publications house In 1960, he started a black literary magazine, "Urbanite," which he described as "a misguided venture because we had so little money"

Later, he worked as a salesman for Tuesday" magazine, another financially plagued publication

He said he finally realized that 'without advertising, you can t survive And, the black consumer market, untapped and undeveloped, was waiting

"Everyone thinks to have a black ad you put a black face in it," he said

But it is important to analyze who the product's prime audience is"

Lewis said Uniworld made $20 million for the movie, "Shaft," through promotion campaigns But, even though "Shaft' signaled the start of black adventure and action movies, Lewis failed to get more accounts

It has become increasingly harder for black agencies to get commitments from large white owned corporations, Lewis said

A lot of people are doing lip service Large companies say one thing, but do something else They aren't willing to take us on," he said

But Lewis maintains that black-oriented ad campaigns from Uniworld have a greater audience response than from a white agency tackling the same problem

'You don't have to be a genius you just have to be black' he said But whatever color, you have to be lucky

6th place steer a winning carcass

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The dilettante steak expert who says you can t tell a steer by its hide may have had his moment Thursday at the Wisconsin State Fair

A Charolais Angus crossbred shown by the Vinz family of Dalton Green County did not achieve stardom until after it had been removed from the show ring to a packing plant

The 1 073 pound steer finished sixth in its weight class But dressed down to a tasty 670 pounds in the quality beef judging the carcass took first prize

Quality Supt Allen Wollenzein said the Vinz entry was a practical carcass with 52 per cent of its weight eligible for retail cuts Its loin eye or first rib steak measured out to 13 5 square inches

An Angus carcass entered by Pat Donahoe of Darlington weighed 546 pounds dressed and had 57 per cent retail potential But it was smaller than the Vinz carcass and won the reserve ribbon

At the steer auction it brought 47 5 cents a pound approximately market price The show s two top live steers were not enrolled in the carcass judging

William J Faskell of New London won the production award in the Swiss breeder judging showing a home bred cow that produced 19 114 pounds of milk last season

The premier breeder award went to Voegli Farms of Montello followed closely by Forest Lawn Farm of Wausau

In the Guernsey show the premier breeder is Bernard Pralle of Onalaska who walked off with other ribbons

In hog judging the top boar and sow ribbons among the Poland China went to the Glen Fowler family of Cuba City

Top Chester White awards went to Chester Home Farm of Watertown and Fred Gunderson of Clinton

Bankruptcy hitting all lines of business

If you go into business for yourself in this era of business downturn, roaring inflation and pervasive unease, the odds against your surviving even five years will be close to 6 out of 10—the highest odds against you since 1966 and signaling a degree of risk that many astute gamblers would refuse to take

What's more, for the first time in this decade to date, just about every bankruptcy trend is heavily adverse to the individual among you still dreaming the great American dream of going into your own business and being your own boss

The number of failures was up 6 4 per cent in the first five months of 1974 over the same period of 1973, the first rise in three years or since the 17 per cent jump during the recession of 1969 70 This trend suggests that unless there is a sharp business comeback in the remaining months of the year—most unlikely—the number of actual business failures reported to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc by the time 1974 ends will have crossed 10,000

Much more significant, among the bankruptcies, there has been a steep climb in big million-dollar failures 'particularly in the general merchandise category," reports Dr Rowena Wyant manager of D & B's Business Economics Dept "This rise began in 1973 and has accelerated substantially this year The average dollar liability per failure is topping the quarter million dollar milestone for the first time since Dun & Bradstreet began keeping records in 1920 The total liabilities of firms that fail in 1974 almost certainly will approach an historic high of $2 5 billion already are running 52 per cent higher than in 1973

Crossing all lines of business

Even a casual scanning of the day to day reports in the financial section of any newspaper from coast to coast underlines the extent to which the bankruptcy trend is broadening deepening starting to cross all lines of financial as well as non financial institutions savings institutions mortgage bankers retailing concerns food chains real estate investment trusts and, obviously, brokerage houses The outlook for brokerage firms is admitted to be as bleak as it has been since the depression of the early 1930 s Wall Street is a disaster area in a generally depressing atmosphere

And a new most fundamental point which you must not underestimate in any way is that the strains that are developing throughout the U S economy are strains that policymakers of the Federal Reserve System want to see developing Their objective which they are trying to make unmistakably clear through repeated public statements as well as actions is to force businessmen to become more cautious because of the bankruptcies and spreading troubles they see and thereby to help break inflational expectations

While the staffs of the 12 Federal Reserve Banks are making daily direct contacts with businesses in their districts to make sure that an unexpectedly dangerous collapse does not set off a domino effect,' spokesmen for the Central Bank insist that its function is not to subsidize inefficient business organizations The Federal Reserve will act to avert a credit crunch or a money panic but not to bail out companies that have gone in for inexcusable wheeling and dealing

Hope for decline in speculation

As an illustration of what the Federal Reserve is hoping will happen elsewhere is the sharp decline in currency speculation by small and medium size banks following the failure of the West German bank, Herstatt, and the extreme difficulties of the Franklin National Bank of New York Virtually overnight, the total volume of trading in currencies in the New York market, in dollar terms, plunged from $60 billion a day to $36 billion a day—and it hasn't gone back up

This is a 'healthy' contraction, authorities argue— the sort that is needed in many areas to curb inflationary psychology

On the surface, the apparent causes of the business failures of 1974, says Dr Wyant, are, primarily heavy operating expenses, inventory difficulties particularly in manufacturing but also in retailing and wholesaling, a slump in sales, poor location, rise in competition, excessive overhead shortage of credit, etc

But underlying the failures in an overwhelming 9 cases out of 10 are the basics the manager s incompetence, inexperience ineptitude Into the balance of 10 per cent may be bunched all the other explanations—including fraud, disaster, neglect

Does this mean you should be discouraged from going out on your own? No! But it does mean you must make sure you know the rules obey them and are prepared to win So tomorrow I ll submit to you a common sense quiz to business success in this period

Nixon's tapes public property, Peterson says

EAU CLAIRE Wis (AP) — Congress should introduce legislation to make the controversial Watergate tapes of former President Richard Nixon public property Democratic National Committeeman Donald O Peterson of Eau Claire said today

Peterson contended in a letter to Wisconsin s congressional delegation that such a move was needed to stop the pilfering of public property bought and paid for by the taxpayers of this nation

He said that what President Gerald Ford has called the long nightmare of Watergate would not end as long as Mr Nixon is permitted to continue the battle of the tapes

Peterson referred to news reports that the nation s top legal authorities have determined tapes recorded by the Nixon administration are the former president s private property

If these reports are true they unfortunately state this position has the concurrence of President Ford Peterson said

These tapes should be readily available to Mr Nixon at any time for what ever defense he feels he needs however this time has not arrived he said The principle that these tapes are the property of the U S government should be firmly established now
